SZECHUEN IS STILL COMING WITH ARMY UPON ICHANG

Repuls: Has Been Scored But Reinforcements Are On Way

Upper River Not Deemed Safe For Navigation By Steamer Lines

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, Sept. 26 (4:10 p.m.)—The text for the Chinese reply to Japan's offer of direct negotiations has been decided upon at a conference at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at which Yeh Kung-cho, Wang Ta-hsieh and Hsiung Hsi-ling participated. Instead of adhering to their former attitude of unconditional opposition to direct negotiations, these gentlemen have now agreed upon a reply which differs greatly from all previous replies to Japan's invitations for negotiations between the two countries.

In place of an unconditional refusal to open negotiations, the reply takes the form of rejection of certain Japanese proposals.

It is believed that Japan will regard this reply as a counter-proposal to be followed by the actual commencement of direct negotiations over the Shantung issue.

Dr. W. W. Yen's action in inviting advice prior to making the above reply is deemed a wise move to forestall opposition on the part of patriotic bodies who have contemplated public demonstrations.

SZECHUEN FALLS BACK

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, Sept. 26.—Following the action on Friday afternoon driving the Szechuenese from the south bank, the Szechuenese on both sides of the river have steadily retreated and are now reported to be beyond Pingshanpa, ten miles up-river.

Native craft are now arriving from Pingshanpa, rice-boats from down-river are also getting in, and the main eastern and southern roads have been opened, so the rice situation is easier.

TRANSFERRED TO LONDON

Peking, Sept. 24.—Mr. Wu Huang, Consul-General at Singapore, is being transferred to London and is to be replaced by Mr. Lo Chang, who is now Consul-General in London.

SILESIA SOON TO BE DECIDED

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 26.—The Journal des Debats understands that some of the members of the League of Nations Council will remain behind in Geneva after the closing of the present session which is expected to take place at the end of the week.

Lord Robert Cecil today intimated that the Council of the League will soon have finished its deliberations on the Upper Silesian question and will make known its decision.

TAKE UP BLOCKADE

Geneva, Sept. 26.—The Assembly of the League of Nations this morning began examination of the proposals regarding Article 16 of the Covenant providing for the use of an economic blockade against a State that has recourse to war contrary to the engagements undertaken in the Covenant. This question was studied last year by the Blockade Commission appointed by the Council of the League and then by the third commission of the present Assembly.

Signor Schanzer (Italy), reporter of the Third Commission of the Assembly, explained the principal modifications suggested in order to make the application of Article 16 more easy and more efficacious. Signor Schanzer pointed out that it was absolutely necessary to provide a mechanism whereby the States members of the League would be authorised to establish an economic blockade against a State convicted of having acted contrary to the obligations it undertook in the Covenant.

Signor Schanzer also pointed out that the Third Commission had decided that the council of the League of Nations would be called upon to express its opinion in such a case should occasion be given by a State member of the League.

Rockefeller Jr. Will Address The Chinese Y.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

Mr. John Davison Rockefeller, Jr., Mrs. Rockefeller, their daughter Miss Abby Rockefeller, Mr. and Mrs. Martin, A. Ryerson of Chicago, Dr. William Henry Welch, and Miss Klein, companion to Miss Rockefeller, arrived in Shanghai early last night and are stopping at the Astor House. They were accompanied by Mr. C. W. Atkinson, Shanghai manager of the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. Rockefeller will be the guest of honor at a tiffin today to be given by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and he will speak at the Chinese Young Men's Christian Association.

Dr. Welch, who is a member of the party, is one of the world's foremost bacteriologists. He is at present director of the School of Hygiene and Public Health at John Hopkins University and has been associated with the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research and other Rockefeller medical projects and institutions since 1901, much of his work being of advisory character.

Mr. Ryerson is connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, which made possible the new plant of the Peking Union Medical College.

COUNTERFEITERS ARRESTED; PLANT SEIZED BY POLICE

Baskets Of Coins, With Complete Equipment, Taken In Timely Raid

A complete and modern counterfeiting plant to produce twenty-cent pieces, which are almost perfect in appearance, was seized by a detail of Hongkew police, headed by Detective Sergeant R. Conduit, in a raid made in an alleyway off Tsepoo Road about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Seventeen Cantonese were arrested while thousands of coins in every stage of preparation, with the equipment, were confiscated. The men will be charged at the Mixed Court today.

The haul was a remarkable one. Acids, discs, coils of wire, pewter, brass, sheets of silver, pots with coins in acid, machinery for giving the coins an aged appearance, dies, stamps and other material were found.

The raid was timely as the plant has been operating but five days and the police believe that no coins as yet have been placed in circulation. Remarkable in detail and "ring," they would have been difficult to detect from good twenty-cent pieces. The machinery used is of foreign manufacture and the plant was efficiently complete. Two automobiles were required to bring the baskets of coins and part of the machinery to the Hongkew station and the heavier machines were left at the shop under guard.

Two of the men in the raid had taken a prominent part yesterday morning in the capture of Amos E. Norman, the man who escaped from the American jail. Detective Sergeant Conduit, who with Detective Sergeant Tinkler, arrested Norman was at the head of the raiding squad while Ah Ching, the Chinese detective who helped locate the plant, was the man who was a big factor in finding Norman.

Dr. Shelton, Once Captive Of Bandit, Now Goes To Lhasa To Try to Help Dalai Lama

Chambdo Lama Calls Him In To Aid Many Wounded And Gives Passport To Head Of Church In Thibet

BY ELLIOTT I. OSGOOD

Peking, Sept. 24.—Dr. A. L. Shelton, the missionary who last year was captured by Yang Tien-fu, the Yunnan bandit, is now on his way back to Batang with plans for a trip to Lhassa. He has letters of introduction from the Chambdo Dali Lama to the Great Buddha himself. His hopes are that he may be allowed to settle in Lhassa and there open medical work.

It will be remembered that during the winter of 1919 he took the trip from Batang to Yunnanfu, bringing out his wife and children, planning to send them on to America. He expected to put them on board ship and then return to Batang and start at once on the road to Lhassa. He had been two years making preparation for such a journey. His capture by Yang Tien-fu and the hardships of his sixty-six days of captivity so impaired his health that he was obliged to go with his family to America and for a time the planned trip to Lhassa was laid aside.

It was soon after he had fallen into the hands of the bandits that Dr. Shelton discovered a small tumor growing on the left side of his neck. This grew rapidly and began pressing upon the nerves which supply nutrition to the side and arm. The side of his head became numb and the muscles of the shoulder shrunk in size.

RESORTS TO OPIATES

Toward the latter days of his captivity the pain became so intense the doctor had to use some of the bandits' opium to get any rest or ease. After the rescuing party reached him considerable doses of morphine had to be injected daily until they reached Yunnanfu where he was at once placed in the French Hospital and a partial operation made on the tumor.

It had grown to such size and had become so connected with the important blood vessels and nerves in the neck, that with the hospital equipment to be found in Yunnanfu, it was not thought wise to undertake the radical operation for the complete removal of the tumor. However, the doctor improved temporarily and quickly sailed for America.

He went at once to the Mayo Brothers of Rochester, Minnesota, where the tumor was completely removed. They at first feared malignancy but this the microscopic examination failed to confirm. In spite of this the tumor recurred and a second operation was necessary. This was followed by a special

ALBANIA IS TOLD TO BOW TO DECISION OF LEAGUE

Commission Will Be Sent To Report On Troubles Along Frontier

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 26.—Contradictory reports regarding the outbreak of Serbo-Albanian hostilities are being issued by the Serbs and Albanians.

Messages from Tirana, the Albanian capital, speak of the heroic Albanian resistance to the attacks of the Serbian army south of the Mirdite district, the objective of which is said to be the occupation of the Luria mountain, west of Dibra, commanding the Tirana plain and threatening the Albanian capital.

The Serbs on the other hand assert that the Albanian reports of fighting are without foundation, the object of them being to impress the League of Nations.

TELL ALBANIA TO OBEY

Geneva, Sept. 26.—The Political Affairs Committee of the League of Nations has adopted two resolutions moved by Lord Robert Cecil: first, advising Albania immediately to accept the decision of the Conference of Ambassadors, and secondly, requesting the Council to appoint three impartial members to proceed to Albania to investigate the execution of the Allied decisions and to report regarding frontier troubles.

The French Government introduced a resolution inviting the Council to request all the States signing the 1912 Opium Convention and also members of the League to send representatives to a conference to discuss measures dealing with narcotics and drugs, whether of plant or chemical origin.

PREMIER AGAIN ASKS TO QUIT JOB AND PEKING

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 24.—Premier Chin Yung-peng submitted his resignation to the President again yesterday and made preparations to leave Peking but gave way in the latter respect to urgent persuasions from the President. It is thought very improbable that the Premier will attend the Cabinet meeting today. According to semi-official reports the Premier's action yesterday was due to the problem created in Anhui by the opposition to the Civil Governor, who was a nominee of the Premier.

5 DEAD, MANY HURT DUE TO BOMB RIOTS IN BELFAST

Snipers Fire on Men Who Try To Aid Victims Of The Explosion

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 26.—Five persons were killed and 60 injured in sectarian fighting in Belfast during the week-end. The casualties were mostly due to bomb outrages.

Two persons were killed and 34 injured by a bomb which was hurled in the street but failed to explode. A small boy however picked it up and threw it into the crowd.

Snipers fired on ambulance men who were assisting the victims. The fighting was particularly bitter in the east end where frenzied women supplied the combatants with ammunition.

The troops repeatedly fired on the mobs, even using Lewis guns.

WOOD PARTY TO SAIL DIRECT TO PHILIPPINE IS.

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, Sept. 26.—Members of the Wood mission have had airplane rides over the Western Hills today. They are leaving Tuesday and will proceed direct to Tokio where, with the exception of Ex-Governor Cameron Forbes and one other member of the mission, the party will embark on the U. S. Cruiser New Orleans for Manila.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 27.—General Leonard Wood, Governor Forbes and a number of other distinguished members of their party, the American Minister, Sir William Brunyate, Vice-Chancellor of the Hongkong University, and others were entertained at a reception at the British Legation last evening. Numerous other guests had been invited to meet the principal guests.

FRENCH PREFER U.S. ARMY STAYS TO WATCH RHINE

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Sept. 26.—A telegram from Paris states that French official circles are greatly disturbed by the reports that the American troops on the Rhine will be withdrawn when the German treaty has been ratified.

M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador at Washington, has been instructed to take the opportunity of pointing out that France would deeply regret the withdrawal of the troops as she considers the American troops on the Rhine the keystone of the arch of Allied solidarity and a great help in enforcing the Treaty of Versailles.

Confucius, China's Great Sage, Is Honored Today

By Elsie McCormick

TODAY in every Confucian temple from Peking to the farthest edge of Szechuen, incense will be burned and offerings placed before the tablet of the Sage in order to commemorate his birthday. Lacking the mystic elements and the beauty of liturgy to be found in the other religions of China, Confucianism expresses itself in bare temples and simple services. Most of the temples hold their rites only once a year, the leader of the ceremonies being not an ordained priest but the layman who happens to be president of the Confucian Society.

If Confucius could enter a temple tonight and crowd in among his own worshippers, he would be sufficiently astonished to lose his philosophic calm.

He died a disappointed man with the conviction that his life had been a failure. "My doctrines make no way," he exclaimed before his death, "I will get upon a raft and float about on the sea."

"Alas! There is no one who knows me," he remarked on another occasion, and he once bitterly told his disciples that in order to become truly famous, he should have taken up archery or charioteering.

The autobiography of Confucius is as brief as the celebrated railroad report of Mr. Finnegan. He says:

WISDOM AT SEVENTY

"At fifteen, my mind was bent on learning.

"At thirty I stood firm.

"At forty I had no doubts.

"At fifty I knew the will of Heaven.

"At sixty I could trust my ears.

"At seventy I could follow my heart's desires without transgression."

There are several details left out of the report, including his unhappy marriage with a lady of the House of Sung, his long wanderings from court to court in the hope of finding a patron who would allow him to try out his theories of government, and the deep irony of his final position as an adviser on military tactics when he of all men prided himself on the arts of peace.

Born in 551 B.C., Confucius, at the age of twenty-two, was already a philosopher with a following of disciples. Perhaps

NORMAN IS RETAKEN; FOUND IN SIDEBOARD

Fugitive Arrested At Home Of Girl Who Now Is On Trial

TAKEN UNARMED

Will Be Star Witness For Vera Pohlman On Friday

Amos E. Norman, the most dramatic criminal figure Shanghai has known—a fugitive who hid himself away for four weeks under the very eyes of the authorities and tempted fate daily by writing letters to save a girl he loved—again is in the grip of the law. Shackled hand and foot with handcuffs and leg irons he is locked in a narrow cell in the American prison from which he escaped on the night of September 7 with Henry Muncie, who was retaken ten days ago and who likewise occupies a cell on a lower floor.

After he was arrested, shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Norman declared that he could have got away from Shanghai. He is a shadow of his former self, a pallid hunted creature whose nerve force is all but spent. In the four weeks that he has been free he has subsisted on the scant bounty of Chinese from whom he was able to obtain from time to time scraps of food and it is known that for days at a time he has kept himself hidden away in dark and cramped quarters, at times when officers of the law were within arm's reach of him.

And, as he said yesterday when they took him back to the American prison, he did it all because he loved a woman and because he could not face the thought of going away and leaving her behind. After the girl, Vera Pohlman, was arrested about a week ago he cast all discretion to the winds.

The authorities imprisoned her on the charge that she had aided Norman and Muncie in making their escape and when this was done, Norman set out upon the desperate enterprise of supplying proofs that the girl had no hand in the escape. This was done in the letters Norman wrote to THE CHINA PRESS upon which public interest has centered in the past week.

GIRL ON STAND

All that Norman has braved and suffered has been in vain, for even as the man hunt was being brought to an end yesterday the girl Vera Pohlman was called to endure the ordeal of another day in the court of U. S. Commissioner F. J. Schuhl where link by link the prosecution has been shaping a chain of circumstantial evidence to prove that she helped Norman and Muncie to gain freedom.

The court hearing yesterday was particularly noteworthy by reason of the fact that Vera Pohlman herself took the stand and testified, and preceding her, Henry Muncie, Norman's companion was questioned at great length by both sides in the case. When the hearing was adjourned Major C. P. Holcomb, the District Attorney, announced that the Government still had several witnesses to call and Mr. L. W. Hartigan said that he would call several additional witnesses for the defense. The hearing is to be resumed at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

ARMSTRONG'S PART

For bringing the long search for Norman to an end let a full measure of credit be given to Ah Ching, Chinese detective attached to Hongkew Police Station. Through the weeks of the man hunt when United States Marshal N. E. Lurton and his slender staff were employing every effort to follow Norman's trail, the central directing force behind all the complicated machinery that was brought into play through the police in every corner of the Settlement rested in the hands of Mr. William Armstrong, Chief Detective Officer who is in charge of the Settlement Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

Ah Ching, having been stationed at a strategic point sent out the call about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning that swiftly had the effect of placing a close cordon of armed Chinese police with bayonets on loaded carbines around the house at 134 Haskell road from which Norman was taken.

It was a trap from which there could be no escape, for while all who wished might pass freely into the circle of bayonets none was suffered to pass out. The house a 134 Haskell Road is a shabby two story structure, typically Chinese, that stands on a corner in the heart of a warren of Chinese houses reached through a maze of narrow lanes.

BIG SQUAD DETAILED

Norman long has been known as a gun man and a dangerous character and the measure of the task the police undertook and their thoroughness is to be gauged from the number of men employed. Those who entered the house were Deputy United States Marshal James L. Gardner, Det.-Inspector J. P. Prosser, John Sullivan and J. W. Prince, Detective Sergeants R. Conduit, R. M. Tinkler, H. McGregor, and H. J. Schmidt and Detective Constable B. Y. Loralkor accompanied them.

An altogether extraordinary thing that has been disclosed since Norman was retaken is that save for one night he has kept himself hidden in the house on Haskell Road through all the weeks he has been at liberty. Aided by the most singular fortune he eluded detection, although the house was searched on no less than three occasions and all through the period Norman was in hiding officers visited the place at intervals.

On the night that Norman and Muncie broke their way to freedom a complete search of the house was made from the roof to the ground, but on that night it has been learned, and Norman says so in one of his letters, that he remained in the house on Woosung Road.

FOUND IN SIDEBOARD

Norman has no mean ability as a contortionist and this is to be seen from the size of the three hiding places that he used in the Haskell Road House. On the occasions that the authorities visited the place and when they arrested Vera Pohlman he was able to hide himself away in one or the other of these three places.

In the ceiling of an upper room of the house he had cut a narrow trap door that had been carefully fitted, but was in plain sight. This opened into the darkness of an indescribably dirty space close under the roof, and according to Chinese in the house Norman spent five days and five nights here under the roof without once venturing forth. The space under the roof was searched on the night of the escape, but in the following five days when Norman occupied it, it was not examined.

The second of the hiding places in the house was entered through a small aperture beneath the narrow stairway. In this place, partly filled with a miscellany of abandoned household junk, Norman wriggled into a place barely large enough to hide his slim figure when danger threatened.

Near the entrance of the house is a tiny room too small to be used for any purpose but to store odds and ends of furniture Norman had his other hiding place in a rattle trap sideboard. The drawer space and the floor of the sideboard had been removed in such a way that even when it was opened, Norman still was able to huddle together in such a way that he could not be seen, occupying a space seemingly too small for a child to wriggle into.

CHINESE BOY WEAKENS

The force that went to the house first scoured thoroughly through the upper floor and as the search proceeded downstairs the Chinese occupants of the place were questioned and cross questioned. Something in a reply a Chinese boy made to a question that he answered aroused the particular interest of the Chinese detective. This led the detective to undertake a veritable third degree. At length the boy showed signs of confusion and of weakening. He declared sullenly that he would say nothing about the man, meaning Norman.

As the result of another volley of questions he began to waver. "That man owe me money, no can talk," he said.

It was then that Ah Ching rose to the occasion. "How much he owe?", he asked the boy and when the boy said the sum was thirteen dollars he quickly produced a $20 bill which he thrust into the boy's gown.

"Now tell where he is," he ordered and it was then that the boy pointed silently into the store room. No sign of Norman was visible when the door of the sideboard was opened and one of the detectives turned menacingly upon the informant. The boy then pointed to the other side of the sideboard.

TAKEN AT GUN POINT

On the top of this piece of furniture were two chairs, and a jumble of papers and clothing. When this mass was swept away the top of a man's head was brought into view and in a flash the muzzle of a revolver was brought to bear upon it. Then Norman, no longer the intrepid gunman, but a wasted figure wan and shaken from his sufferings, was again arrested.

He had on a pair of white duck trousers, a shirt without collar and he wore no coat. It was speedily found that he was unarmed and as it was apparent that all the fight was gone out of him, the officers quietly pocketed the weapons they had been carrying.

In the search that was made it was found that Norman was unarmed. All that he had, in fact, [illegible] of Vera Pohlman, a small faded picture of the girl and a roll of newspaper clippings cut from THE CHINA PRESS, the chronicle of his recent career and the letters he has written.

With a guard of soldiers marching in a square around him while the houses along the way emptied and literally thousands pressed down on captive and captors Norman guarded by the little group of officers marched to the Chapei police station, as the arrest was made in Chinese territory.

The necessary formalities were quickly attended to at the Chapei police station and then Norman was conveyed in a police automobile back to the American prison that he had quitted just four weeks to go today. At the American prison his clothing was removed and when he had been supplied with the two-color prison garb he was ironed and placed in a cell.

WILL TESTIFY FRIDAY

It is probable that Norman himself will be called to testify in Commissioner Schuhl's Court Friday afternoon when the hearing of the charge against Vera Pohlman is again taken up. Mr. Hartigan for the defense said it was his purpose to call Norman and the prisoner then in his own person will be given the opportunity to say all the things he has been trying to say in his letters to THE CHINA PRESS.

The most significant thing in the testimony brought out at yesterday's hearing came from a frightened little Chinese boy of thirteen Mau Lun-fok, who has been employed in the house at 134 Haskell Road where Norman hid and Norman lived with Vera Pohlman. The boy asserted that he had seen Norman and Vera Pohlman together in the house since the night of the prison break. The prosecution also attaches much importance to a letter that the boy identified. This had been written by Norman and addressed to Vera Pohlman with the purpose, the prosecution intends, of having it fall into the hands of the police, as it lifts all blame from Vera Pohlman and says Norman is fleeing from Shanghai. The boy declared that Vera Pohlman gave him the letter with instructions to deliver it to the police when they came to the house.

MUNCIE ON STAND

In the testimony he gave in the course of a long grilling on the stand, Henry Muncie, still in his prison garb, recounted events that followed the prison break. Vera Pohlman's testimony consisted chiefly of a denial of having given aid to the two in prison and told in detail also of incidents in connection with her visits to the prison.

COURT ROOM CROWDED

Again the court room was thronged with every seat and all available standing room taken and again Vera Pohlman, visibly breaking under the strain of recent days was the center of all eyes.

At the conclusion of the hearing Mr. Hartigan asked that a greater measure of freedom be accorded to the girl in the hospital where she is confined and this request has been referred to Marshal Lurton.

Early yesterday before he was captured Norman wrote another letter to THE CHINA PRESS. This was in answer to testimony that had been given in Vera Pohlman's case and in the letter Norman denies vehemently assertions made by Detective Sergeant Prosser and Deputy Marshal Gardner. In this final letter Norman has made the mistake of using the name of Detective Sergeant Prince, who gave no testimony. The letter, however, is given as it was written as follow:

NORMAN'S LAST LETTER

Shanghai, China Tues. 27, 1921.
From: Amos E. Norman.
To: Editor, CHINA PRESS
Subject: That Detective Prince and Marshal Gardner are liars.

Dear Sir: I wish to state now I did not leave as I had planned on the s.s. Suiyang for Canton and about the time that I headed my letter I will not say positive as I was just after I got out of bed that I wrote it.

THE CHINA PRESS was already there. I took it to be about 1 o'clock so I headed my letter so.

I wish to say again that I had on only a pair of drawers and not a shirt. To prove this I will use Detective Prince's own words. He said to Gardner "There is the bullet wound" and he pointed at it with his finger. It is on my left side about even with the kidneys and he did not lift up an undershort to see it. I have no wound on my right thigh. I have two on my left side and one on my left knee just to the right of the knee cap, also one on my right hand between the third and fourth fingers and on my right side I have a long scar from an apendicks operation.

Gardner just told me to get dressed and they both stood in the door way while I did. Both of them are liers and are trying to cover up their own neglect of duty. When they arrested me after I was dressed Gardner put the hand cuffs on me and we went to the Mixed Court.

Tell the old fool that said I was a snow bird that I laugh at him and he is a lyer when he says he went through the seems of my clothes.

The man that uses dope of any kind is what I call mentally deficient and would [illegible] have brains enough to break [illegible] have all [illegible]

American Marshal Thanks The Police

United States Marshal Nelson E. Lurton requests THE CHINA PRESS to express his appreciation of the co-operation given by the International Settlement Police in the capture of Amos E. Norman.

"The Municipal Police, especially the Criminal Investigation Department, is entitled to the highest praise possible for their work in the Norman case, also in the recapture of Henry Muncie, and the office of the United States Marshal is very desirous of expressing appreciation for the efforts made by the various departments and men concerned," Mr. Lurton said.

Pohlman Girl Collapses When She Learns Norman Is Again In Prison Cell

Curious men and women of many nationalities, sensation seekers, lovers of the sordid, packed the United States court room and hall ways yesterday afternoon at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Vera Pohlman.

Long before the court opened the crowd gathered anxious to catch a glimpse of the girl who holds such a strange fascination for Amos E. Norman. And from the time she was brought into the court room—trembling and weak—until her complete breakdown following the adjournment, this sphinx-like Russian girl was the center of interest.

During the examination of witnesses when Mr. Leonard W. Hartigan, consul for the defense, and District Attorney C. P. Holcomb indulged in friendly tiffs much to the amusement of the crowd waiting to be amused, thrilled or shocked, Mrs. Pohlman manifested little interest.

Wearily she leaned back in her chair—a pathetic figure—and only the twitching of her mouth and the constant clasping and unclasping of her deeply-veined hands showed her nervous tension.

Her sunken brown eyes which dominate her thin brown face, haunting in its sadness, stared into space as if seeing visions of other days when she was a sought-after beauty and favorite in the Russian ballet.

IS CALLED TO STAND

When she was called to the stand she walked slowly and as if in a daze. After taking the oath she sank into the witness chair and began to show a display of interest in her surroundings.

Familiar to the stares of spectators, due to her stage experience, she was at ease and not in the least embarrassed by the many faces and craning necks of the sensation seekers.

But yesterday Vera Pohlman was playing a different role. Whereas a few years ago she was gorgeously costumed, wearing jewels and was a spirit of fire and radiant personality as she danced behind the footlights, yesterday she was a broken trembling woman—a shabbily dressed prisoner.

Yet even now Mrs. Pohlman's personality is felt. And so great is her influence over Amos Norman that he lost his freedom because he was not willing to leave from Shanghai while she was held a prisoner in the Victoria Nursing Home.

BREAKS UNDER STRAIN

In broken English, occasionally appealing to Marshal N. E. Lurton for assistance in choosing a word, Vera Pohlman carefully answered all questions and declared her innocence of any attempt to assist Norman to escape.

She was kept on the stand only a short time when a little Chinese boy, wide eyed and astonished at his strange surroundings was brought to the witness box.

During his testimony by which the prosecution hopes to weave a mesh of evidence around her, Mrs. Pohlman became excited.

But it was when Norman's name was mentioned, in a discussion as to whether or not he should be called into court as a witness that Mrs. Pohlman finally broke down, her mask of reserve forgotten.

"Have they got him," she whispered, gripping the arms of her chair.

Then she wilted and fought her tears. Burying her head in her arms she sobbed and sobbed and as the curious spectators strolled leisurely out of court on adjournment they left Vera Pohlman crying as if her heart would break.

U. S. Exports And Imports Increase; Wages Declining

The following cablegram from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, was received at the office of the American Commercial Attache, Shanghai, yesterday:

American Exports to China —$8,900,000 for August.

Imports from China—$12,000,000.

Business Quiet.

Steel Prices Sagging.

Production Slightly Better.

Exports and Imports increasing.

Wages Declining.

In July American exports to China were $5,700,000 and imports from China were $10,100,000.

The increase for August was $3,200,000 or 56 percent in exports and $1,900,000 or 19 percent in imports.

'FAMINE' ROAD IS OPEN; SURTAX STILL CHARGED!

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Sept. 24.—The formal opening of the second American Red Cross road to be completed in China will be celebrated today at Pingtingchow, Shansi. The director of the American Red Cross relief work, Mr. J. E. Baker, and party left Peking for Shansi Thursday night to preside over the opening ceremony, at which the chief officials of Shansi province will be present.

The new road runs from Yangchuan, not far inside the Shansi border on the Taiyuanfu Railway, to Liaohsien, about one hundred miles southward, and over the Shansi border from Shuntehiu. The largest city on its route is Pingtingchow, which is only six miles south of the railway, and to which place the visitants will be taken in motor-cars for the celebration.

South of Pingtingchow the road goes by steep ascent into the beautiful mountain country of eastern Shansi. The grade varies from 3.6 to 6.6, and on certain climbs resting places have been built alongside of the road upon which motor cars may cool their motors or their brakes, depending upon whether they are bound up or down hill.

The road is mountain construction throughout, and constitutes one of the most admirable stretches of highway yet built in China. Its cost was $7,000 per mile, a considerable increase over that of the level plain from Tenchow to Lintsing, in Shantung, which cost only $1,800 per mile.

The country through which the road passes is remarkably self-sufficient in its products, and modern communications will make the poor mountaineers prosperous. Every article used in the road construction with the exception of a few hundred American steel picks and supplies for the foreign engineers' mess was obtained locally. The iron for the tools was mined in these hills and wrought by the native tool-smiths, the coal used in burning lime and the lime rock itself being mined along the road.

One more Red Cross road remains to be opened, the third: that from Taiyuanfu running directly west to the Yellow River and the Shensi border. The mountain difficulties on this road are even greater than on the one being opened, and it is costing $7,700 per mile. It is to be opened in October.

QUEER, ISN'T IT?

General feeling is that the Red Cross has by construction of the plain and mountain roads set excellent examples before the China for road-building programs. The low degree of official appreciation, however, is shown by the refusal of the government railway authorities to grant passes for the director and his party to visit the opening ceremony.

The original "famine" passes held by them have been cancelled upon the grounds that the famine has been officially declared ended. When certain officials were asked why, if the famine be ended, famine taxes and surcharges are still being collected, they replied with an impertinent smirk:

"Isn't that queer!" apparently wishing to pass it off as a good joke.

Director Baker, whose furlough is already one year overdue, is leaving for the States immediately after the Yangchuan road dedication. It is felt that he has put through one of the biggest and most praiseworthy jobs ever carried out in China, and that his vacation is well earned.

DR. WADDELL TO ATTEND MEETING OF ENGINEERS

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Sept. 21.—Dr. J. A. L. Waddell, technical expert of the Yellow River Bridge Commission, will attend the annual meeting of the Association of Chinese and American Engineers to be held at Hankow before returning to New York. Dr. Waddell will give a paper before the Association, probably on the topic, "The best type of bridge for China."

The engineers' convention will meet at Hankow from October 4 to 6, and preparations are being made to entertain some two hundred members and guests. Among the prominent engineers present who plan to be at the meeting are: F. H. Clark, Commissioner on Railway Technics; Frank Rhea, U. S. Trade Commissioner; K. Y. Kwang, Peking-Suiyuan Railway and President of the Association; Yang Paoling, of the Grand Canal Improvement Board; F. C. Hitchcock, American International Corporation and Seims-Carey R. R. and Canal Co.; S. C. Thomas, Sec. Motor Transport Service, Peking-Suiyuan R. R.; Yen Tehching, Canton-Hankow R. R.; Murray Sullivan, General Manager Chinese Engineering and Development Co.; F. R. Sites, U. S. Steel Products, Shanghai; Paul T. Whitham, The Foundation Company, Shanghai; Edwin W. Mills, Mining Engineer; W. L. Hodges, Consulting Engineer; R. D. Goodrich, Chihli Rivers Conservancy; C. J. Carrol, Chief Engineer Szechuen-Hankow R. R.; S. K. Sah, Kaichen Engineering Corp.; P. Y. Tsai, Technical Expert Ministry of Communications; K. Y. Cha, of Ministry of Communications.

The Association of American and Chinese Engineers was organised in November, 1919. The last annual convention was held in Tientsin.

Co-Education Given Setback By Boys Of Kaying School

Kaying, Sept. 16.—Last spring the government middle school here advertised far and wide that beginning this fall girl students would be admitted to the school on equal terms with the boys. About 20 girls applied for admission, but when the time for opening school came, the male students rose up in their wrath and said if girls were allowed to come in, and thus lower the standards of the school, they would leave in a body.

They also appealed to the newly elected magistrate and said in effect that if the opposite sex were allowed to matriculate in the school they would have to do so over the dead bodies of those who now honor the school with their presence.

The girls were inclined also to be insistent on their rights in an effeminate sort of way, but the authorities decided that the time was not yet quite ripe to take the step, so the boys are studying in peace without any hair ribbons to bother them.

Coal Is Blamed For Liner's Fire

(Reuter's Service)

Capetown, Sept. 25.—The Commonwealth and Dominion liner Port Augusta has arrived here on fire. The fire broke out last week, while she was in the South Atlantic, in bunkers containing coal loaded at New York and Rotterdam. It is believed that the Continental coal is responsible.

The stokers worked in six hour shifts under terrible conditions. The smoke and sulphur fumes spread almost throughout the ship, and the crew were driven from the forecastle.

The cargo is a valuable one, and one of the holds ablaze contains motor-cars and agricultural implements.

Opium Dealer Is Jailed For Offering Bribe

A dealer in opium who sought to bribe Detective Sergeant Yorke of the Shanghai Municipal police at the time of the raid on his place off Canton road was sentenced to four months imprisonment in the Mixed Court yesterday, and his assistant fined $20.

The attempt at bribery, according to the police was an offer of $1,000, later raised to $2,000 to "call the thing square."

The defense offered was that the officer must have been mistaken, that the accused could not speak the Shanghai dialect which the detective understood, and offered that the interpreter, "a scholar who spoke many dialects" was unable often to understand the accused's testimony.

Mr. Yorke, however insisted that he had conversed at length with the man and that their conversation was mutually understood.

ARMED BANDITS FOILED BY GUNS OF THE POLICE

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Sept. 26.—A daring outrage was perpetrated in broad daylight today in the crowded Grand Central Station. Three bandits, armed with lead pipes and revolvers, attempted to snatch a handbag from a railroad cashier containing thousands of dollars.

The robbers fired eighteen shots and terrified the travellers who scrambled for safety, but they were frustrated owing to the timely arrival of police reinforcements.

Pole Fires Upon Marshal But Hit Only Companion

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 26.—A telegram from Warsaw states that as Marshal Pilsudski, the Polish Chief of State, accompanied by Count Gravouski, was getting into his motor car after a dinner given in his honor, an individual fired three revolver shots at him, without however injuring him. Count Gravouski was wounded.

The perpetrator, who was arrested, tried to commit suicide, but was prevented.

Your Health Comes First

Good Health is your most valuable asset;—its preservation should, therefore, receive your most careful consideration. An important point which should always be borne in mind is the fact that a great many forms of ill-health can be traced, directly or indirectly, to disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is wise, therefore, to keep these organs in healthy activity. When they show any signs of derangement let that reliable medicine, Beecham's Pills, be taken at once. Always deal with digestive ailments in time. They are far-reaching in their possibilities of mischief if neglected, as they too often are. DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP TO BE PLAYED THIS AFTERNOON AT 3.30 ON RECS COURTS

Canavarro — Toussaint Meet Tanaka — Okada In Tennis Classic

the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association will be decided this afternoon with the meeting of the finalists of the competition, Messrs. R. D. Canavarro and H. Toussaint and Messrs. J. Tanaka and W. Okada, on the courts of the Shanghai Recreation Club, at 3:30 o'clock.

Canavarro and Toussaint won their way to the finals yesterday by their defeat of Potts and Roberts in the last set of the match postponed from Monday because of darkness. They have played in every round, defeating first Saunders and Forrest, then Capt. Barrett and R. Roberts who entered the tournament in the second round after having enjoyed a bye in the first day's play. Hawes and Wilson were the next pair to suffer defeat and the Canavarro-Toussaint pair entered the finals by defeating Potts and Roberts.

Tanaka and Okada also have played in every round winning consistently through to the finals. They had some difficulty in the first round with A. F. and L. R. Wheen, but after that the going was smooth with matches won over Knowles—Mansel-Smith, Oka and Hisaye, and Wade and Ollerdessen.

Canavarro have played a very careful game through the tournament, profiting much by the errors of their opponents, and coming through with all matches won excepting the one lost to Potts and Roberts. Tanaka and Okada have played more aggressive tennis. They have taken more chances at play. They have lost four sets out of 13 played.

EXPECT BIG GALLERY

The match this afternoon will draw a big gallery of spectators of a half dozen nationalities. Canavarro will draw his big and optimistic following from the Portuguese community; Toussaint will have the support of the Cercle Sportif and the French Community; Tanaka and Okada will be cheered on by loyal Japanese enthusiasts, and Britains, Americans and others will fill out the assemblage until the committee of the Recs club will be taxed to accommodate them.

Canavarro and Toussaint are held by many to be the favorites in today's match. They play a game so careful, with studied touch to every ball. They are veterans at tournament tennis, and their great caution and better experience is held by many as the qualities that will win. Should Tanaka and Okada play their usual dashing game they may lose the match by their mistakes and faults; should they play the careful, cautious, lobbing game, however, it is difficult to predict the result.

Canavarro and Toussaint are last year's champion pair. They won out in the finals over Wade and Tanaka. They played last year, just as they have played through the 1921 tournament, and Wade and Tanaka attempting a forcing, aggressive style literally "blew up" and lost the match and the championship of themselves.

The match today commence at 3:30 o'clock. Intending spectators are advised to arrive at the Recs pavilion early to procure a place of vantage from which to watch the play.

Dixwell Rd. Tennis Club Tournaments Commence Saturday

The men's and the mixed doubles tournament of the Dixwell Road Tennis Club will be played on the club's courts on Saturdays, commencing October 1 and 8.

To facilitate the playing of the matches it has been decided that any double that happens to be on the courts may play their match provided neither has been beaten previously in that tournament.

All members taking part in the tournaments are requested to turn up on Saturdays so that they may be available to play.

Golfer Holes Out In One; Ball In Man's Pocket

New York, August 27.—One of the dictums handed down through the ages that measure the history of golf is that one must not, under any circumstances, question the word of your opponent. Doubt him? Yes. But question his veracity? Never.

However the Port Chester Country Club is responsible for the following incident, and since the principals, both vouch for its veracity, custom demands that it may be doubted but not questioned.

George E. Mertz, Jr., driving from the fifth tee recently lost his ball. August M. Brezovsky playing just ahead of him, felt a stinging sensation in his side, but paid no heed to it.

After Mertz had looked for his ball in vain, he went back and played another, and a short time later Brezovsky found a strange ball nestling in his pocket. Upon examination it was found to have Mertz's initials stamped upon it.

It is believed, say club officials that the ball bounded into Brezovsky's pocket.

Believe it or not!

FLAGSHIP TEAM BATSMEN WERE ALL IN A SLUMP

Only One .300 Hitter; Five Regulars Were Under A .200 Average

The surprisingly long string of lost games suffered recently by the baseball team of the flagship Huron may be explained partially by the summary of their players' batting averages issued yesterday just before the flagship sailed for the South. The team on a whole has fallen in batting to .220 percent, and five of its regular men are hitting the ball at less than .200 percent.

The averages follow:

Five Wickets Go For 33 Runs; Leach Takes 6 For 36; Scores Were Low

Shanghai cricketers playing in the interport match at Hankow concluded their second day's play with less effective cricket than that had in the first innings. Notwithstanding the better wicket runs were scarce, several wickets falling in a row for small scores.

The highest score of the second innings was that made by Pearson for Hankow who counted 37 not out. Robertson for Shanghai counted 35 not out. Rawsthorne also batted well.

The Shanghai's bowlers were again in great form on the second day's play, especially Leach who took six wickets for only 36 runs. Pearson, for Hankow took five for 33. He is credited with saving his team from a wider defeat.

Long Driving Craze In Golf

Fallacies Of Heavy Clubs And Of Hard Hitting

BY HARRY VARDON

I still hold that the present standard of British golf falls short of the old. That is to say, it is not so consistent. Sometimes it is very brilliant indeed, but the brilliancy is not sustained. You never know what anybody is going to do next, and such variableness must naturally be taken into account in estimating a standard. The reason, I am convinced, is to be attributed to the fever for terrific hitting which seems to obsess the younger golfers more and more as the years roll by.

No doubt it is very thrilling to read that this player and that player and the other player have driven 350 yards and turned holes of 500 yards into mere drives and half-irons. Such feats are reported and emphasised and discussed at every possible opportunity. They are fashionable; they constitute a passing phase of the game; I suppose. It is very much the same as a vogue in hats. Now-a-days, golfers read and dream and think and talk only of very big drives.

All conditions and classes of golfers are infected. The medium handicap man and the budding scratch player want to be in the swim with the champions as mighty punchers. They try all manner of hitting calculated to force an extra 20 yards out of the ball and all manner of clubs, including things like sledge-hammers which swing the player off his balance—the fate of my promising young pupil.

The champions of former times secured distances relatively as good without all this straining, and the effects were appreciably better because the player concentrated first on controlling the flight and direction of the shots. A few men of exceptional physical attributes can weild heavy clubs to advantage, but it is absurd to suppose that everybody, by using a 12-ouncer, or by going all out to hit, can solve the problem of long driving.

SWING FIRST ESSENTIAL

In point of fact, the true swing is still the first essential of long driving. I still agree that the vigor of youth is a help, but without the true swing little satisfaction is to be obtained. There always have been mightily long tee shots in favorable circumstances, although they used not to be written about with such fervour and discussed with such bated breath as in recent times, and, as a result, they did not set the multitude of golfers throwing accuracy to the winds in the hope of achieving unprecedented length.

With gutta-percha balls, Mr. Edward Blackwell drove 366 yards at St. Andrews in 1892, and the late Mr. F. G. Tait drove 341 yards on the same course in 1893. Having regard to the difference in the construction of the ball, these were relatively longer shots than any that have been made during the modern long-distance driving craze.

Certainly a heavy ball is not necessary to gaining distance. Let me quote a personal experience. In the open championship at Prestwick in 1914, my drive—a straight one—from the fourteenth tee finished in the bunker guarding the green. The hole was given as measuring 400 yards. My drive was estimated at 350 yards, which I suppose was almost right. At the seventeenth my drive stopped just in front of the green; that was set down as a shot of 330 yards.

Now, at that time, I was using one of the lightest drivers I ever had in my bag. It weighed as nearly as possible 13½ ounces. Nor did I try to hit the ball inordinately hard. I just happened to strike it truly with a true swing—nothing else was necessary.

It would be good for golf if the craze for trying to hit the ball out of sight died a natural death and the control of the shot comes into its Kingdom again. It counts for more than anything. And the length comes with it.

WEST DEFEATS EAST IN AM'N TENNIS TOURNEY

Tilden And Jones Lose In Singles To Hawkes And Anderson

(Reuter's Service)

Chicago, Sept. 26.—The Australian Davis Cup lawn tennis player, Anderson, today beat Tilden, the American champion, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2, 1-6, 19-17 in a match in the annual East v. West Championship.

The Australian pair, Hawkes and Anderson, beat Tilden and Arnold Jones, 4-6, 6-2, 8-6, 6-3.

The East vs. West championship is an annual intersectional competition of America. It continues three days, with two singles matches and one doubles usually scheduled for each day. Hawkes and Anderson, who represented Australia in the Davis Cup challenge round are residents of the American Pacific Coast and therefore eligible to play in the competition.

Last year the East won four of the six singles, and one of the two doubles matches played. The third doubles match was stopped by darkness in the first set.

SHANGHAI MEETS HONGKONG TODAY IN FIRST EVENTS OF BIG INTERPORT SWIM

Quarter Mile And Throwing Polo Ball Are On Today's Program

The interport swimming contests between Shanghai and Hongkong are scheduled to commence this evening and continue until Saturday inclusive.

The following is the program Today—880 yards. Throwing the Polo Ball.

(Note: These two events will take place outside the bath, in the harbor).

Tomorrow—220 yards. Long Plunge.

Friday—440 yards. Running Headers from springboard.

Saturday—100 yards. Standing Headers (High Dive), 100 yards back stroke, Relay Race, Water Polo Match.

Reports from all those who have recently been in Hongkong are uniformly to the effect that the Southern VII is a very strong one, but if all the members of the Shanghai septette do their best, there is every chance of Shanghai capturing the water polo match.

In diving, Brown, Brodie, Goldman and Siemssen ought to make a good showing, while in all the other individual events Shanghai is well represented, as follows:

100 and 220 yards: Siemssen, Tordy and Brodie.

440 yards: Siemssen, Brodie and Brown.

880 yards: Siemssen, Remedios and Tordy.

100 yards back stroke: C. J. Encarnacao.

Throwing the Polo Ball and Long Plunge: R. W. MacCabe.

Comb Full Of Hair? Use Germol

GERMOL Makes Scalp Hold Tight to Hair and Stops It from Falling.

Hair falls out because the hair roots are debilitated. Infuse them with renewed vigor, and your hair will stop falling. This is what happens when you use GERMOL, the newly discovered hair-root strengthener and hair rejuvenator. GERMOL, by giving giant vigor to the hair roots, makes the root sacs grip tightly to every strand of hair. Hair stops falling as a result. You can prove this absolutely by a short treatment with this amazing product, GERMOL. It will bring back to the hair its youthful and normal color, stop the graying process of hair, relieve dandruff and itching scalp, and make your hair grow profusely and luxuriantly. No matter how gray your hair or how bad the hair falling, try it, you'll be surprised.

"Prepared only by 'GERMOL' HAIR SPECIALISTS, London."

HUGHES IS FIRM IN HIS STAND ON OPEN DOOR PACT

(Asiatic News Agency)

Peking, Sept. 22.—With reference to the Federal Wireless concession which was erroneously reported to have been canceled by the Chinese government, Mr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese Minister to Washington, says that he has a reply to an enquiry from the Chinese Legation at Washington as to whether the American government will withdraw its support to the American Federal Wireless Corporation. This company signed an agreement with the Peking Ministry of Communications in January 1921 for the construction of some modern high power wireless stations at Shanghai and some other cities.

The British, Japanese and Danish Legations in Peking had all protested to China against the granting of this right to an American firm without their previous concurrence and approval, but Mr. Hughes, Secretary of State, has notified Mr. Sze that as such claim of monopolistic rights in China by foreign Powers cannot be reconciled with either the treaty rights of the United States or with the principle of the "open door" or equal opportunity in commerce and industry in the Republic of China, the American government cannot see its way to recognise the contention under whatever circumstances. Mr. Hughes adds that the American government continues its wholehearted support of the principle of the "open door" in the Far East and China in particular because the faithful enforcement of the "open door" policy and the maintanance of the territorial integrity and political independence and principle in China are all indispensable to the preservation of peace and the free development of international commerce and industry on the Pacific.

As a consequence, the State Department has assured the Chinese Legation in Washington that the continuation of the diplomatic support to the Federal Wireless contract signed with the Peking Chiao-tung Pu to erect wireless stations in China does not imply that the American government seeks to establish or claim any so-called "special rights or privileges" for United States citizens in the Chinese Republic thus interfering in any way with the treaty rights of other Powers; but under no circumstance, will the American government acquiesce or recognise any monopolistic or special privileges and concessions of other Powers to the detriment of American treaty rights in any part of China.

This strong reaffirmation of the Hay Doctrine in China by the State Department under Mr. Hughes indicates the firm and fearless policy of Washington and it has created a fine impression among the better and educated classes of the Chinese people. The negotiations for the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance were dropped in London because one of the features of the treaty was the protection of their "special rights" in China.

DEATH PENALTY GIVEN MAN WHO STOLE SUPPLIES

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Sept. 16.—On Sept. 12 the Moscow Revolutionary Tribunal opened the trials of the officials of the Moscow fuel department, Domoshlak, Goldman, Poliakoff, Semenoff, Borovikoff and Radosvlioff, accused of embezzlement and misappropriation of privisions and forage.

The Tribunal established that the accused by forgery obtained from the state warehouse 1,558 poods of oats, 115 poods of flour, 113 poods of salt, 69 poods of sugar and many other goods which they sold at the city markets and devided the realised money among themselves.

The Tribunal sentenced Domoshlak (member of communist party) to death, and Goldman (Menshevik) to 5 years of hard labor. Others were given different terms of imprisonment.

Soviet Meeting Polish War Cry With Peace Talk

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Sept. 21.—At the Moscow Soviet session on Sept. 20 Trosky said:

"On Sept. 3, the French Government ordered Poland to send us an ultimatum, promising her and Rumania assistance in a war against Soviet Russia, expecting that our famine would compel us to accept Polish demands. Poland hesitated, but yesterday she delivered to us an ultimatum expiring October fifth. We do not want war and shall negotiate till the expiration of the ultimatum's date."

The Moscow Soviet resolved to resist insolent demands and protect the Workers and Peasants Republic to the last drop of blood.

Resolutions and appeals were addressed to the workers of the world to prevent any new adventure of militarists when Soviet Russia struggles with famine.

PROVISIONS TO VOLGA

Moscow, Sept. 19.—The relief work in the Volga famine region must be considered very successful. The necessary quantities of seeds have been delivered in excess in time for the fall sowing season. By Sept. 1 in the Volga region 212 carloads of provisions were delivered. During the present month it is expected to deliver 2,338 poods of provisions.

The first German sanitary detachment has arrived at Petrograd and immediately proceeded to famine districts.

Moscow, Sept. 17.—Mr. Guroff, the representative of commissariat of Agriculture, reports that he was convinced from the trip he recently made to Volga region that the energetic work of the Central Government and the co-operation of local authorities will avert the catastrophe of famine.

AMERICANS OBJECT

(Delta News Agency)

Chita, Sept. 18.—The hasty renaming of the "Russo-American Famine Relief Association" of Prince Kurakin at Harbin to the "International" was due to the protest of the local American colony, which demanded the lowering of the stars and stripes within 24 hours, as their flag was utilised by the reactionaries as a screen to fool some foreigners and the Russian simpletions.

TARTARS ARE STARVING

(Reuter's Service)

Stockholm, Sept. 26.—An official Russian report from Samara states that the famine amongst the Tartars is terrible and that thousands are dying of starvation. An unprecedented catastrophe is imminent, the report, adds, unless food arrives in time.

SOVIET MUST BE TRUSTED

London, Sept. 26.—M. Krassin who returns to London tomorrow, interviewed by Reuter's Berlin Correspondent, said that it would be unfair to withhold help from the starving millions in Russia on the pretext that the Bolshevists cannot be trusted. The Bolshevists, he said, have given the guarantees demanded and cannot do more. Moreover, added M. Krassin, Mr. Hoover, the members of the Society of Friends and of the Salavation Army who are at present carrying on relief work are satisfied with the treatment they have received from the Soviet authorities.

M. Krassin declared that he was convinced that if the Soviet agents in Afghanistan and Persia were guilty of the charges which Lord Curzon made against them they would be recalled forthwith and punished, just as he was sure that the British Government would deal with the officials who recently deported the Soviet mission from Constantinople.

120 KITCHENS GOING

Riga, Sept. 26.—The Americans have organised 120 kitchens at Petrograd which are producing 60,000 loaves of bread daily for the starving children. The Americans were compelled to reduce the rations as the children, who had not seen white bread for years, so voraciously devoured it that they became ill.

CROP OUTLOOK BAD

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, Sept. 27.—Official Zemstvo crop reports state that the situation in the Nikolsk-Ussurissk and Olga districts is bad, and indicate that the drought has affected 75 percent of the area of the former and 60 percent of the latter district.

In view of the probability of a famine, the Zemstvo requests the Ministry of the Interior to waive the duty on foreign grain imported into the affected regions.

Chemical And Dye Works Shut Down

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 26.—According to a telegram from Frankfurt the Chemische Fabrik at Griesheim, as well as the Hoechst Dye Works, have closed down and dismissed all their workers owing to alleged unreasonable wage demands.

Poll Tax Decision Won By Japanese

San Francisco, September 12.—The California Supreme Court has declared that the California alien poll tax is inoperative in so far as it affects the Japanese, and has ordered the dismissal of Mr. Heikichi Terui of Oakland, who was arrested to test the law, and who contended that the most favored nation clause of the U.S.—Japan treaty was violated. This decision saves every male Japanese resident in California $10 a year.

The law was passed by the Californian Legislature in response to the constitutional amendment voted in the last election, by the people of the state.

Mr. Terui is secretary of the Japanese Business Men's Association, of Oakland, and he refused to register or pay the poll tax. The authorities agreed to take the case directly before the Supreme Court of the state, in order to get a prompt decision as to the constitutionality of the law, and in the meantime Mr. Terui was released on bail.

Dr. Shelton, Once Captive Of Bandit, Now Goes To Lhasa

serum treatment and the doctor gradually recovered his strength.

Dr. Shelton appeared before many audiences in America, interesting them in his much beloved Thibet. He spoke before the National Geographic Society in Washington. The September number of the National Geographic contains an article from his pen. While in New York City he was entertained in the home of John D. Rockefeller Jr. who was much interested.

HAS MANY PRESENTS

Dr. and Mrs. Shelton sailed from America early in August. Before sailing he supplied himself with considerable quantities of pocket knives, cheap watches, agate marbles and strings of shell pearl beads to be used as presents along his journey. Previous experiences has taught him that these small articles are most attractive to the average Thibetan official or priest, and presents are an indispensable thing in all Thibetan traveling.

Dr. Shelton proceeded directly to Hongkong and by this time is not far from the point in Yunnan where he was captured last year. Mrs. Shelton will not accompany her husband this time but is going on to India to publish some books in the Thibetan language which she has prepared. It may not be generally known that the entire Bible has not yet been translated into the Thibetan language.

The New Testament, Genesis, Exodus and the Psalms have been translated. Mrs. Shelton has added the story of Esther. She says this old Oriental story is most intensely interesting to the Thibetans.

Mrs. Shelton is at present in Peking but will arrive in Shanghai about the 29th of this month. In Peking she met Col. McGruder who has just returned from a trip through Szechuen and Eastern Thibet. Col. McGruder said that everywhere he went in Thibet the people asked him if he knew Dr. Shelton and would talk of little else if left to choose their topic. herdsmen and been entertained He found no man in Thibet who had greater influence with the people.

CARRIES DRUG KIT

Dr. Shelton has long made it a practice to spend each year some months traveling through the country. He has camped with robbers, slept with in the monasteries. He always carries with him a case of drugs and a small kit of surgical instruments. Once he stopped with a Catholic priest and found him caring for a Thibetan whose leg was broken. The wound was in such a bad condition that the doctor saw that nothing but an operation would save the man. The priest begged him to perform the operation. This Dr. Shelton did and then instructed the priest in dressing the stump.

A few years ago, in one of the numerous clashes between the Thibetans and Chinese the Dali Lama at Chambdo gathered the wounded into his monastery and sent for Dr. Shelton. Chambdo is fifteen days' journey from Batang but the doctor at once gathered his equipment and started with two assistants. Needless to say, he found the wounded in a terrible state.

CURES LAMA'S MEN

The Chambo Lama had brought in a native doctor but he had not improved matters. The worst cases were the first to be operated on as Dr. Shelton felt it wise to give them his personal attention for some days. Each day he and his assistants operated and dressed wounds until they were tired. They initiated the native doctor into some of the mysteries of modern surgical dressings so that when they left, he could continue their treatment.

The Dali Lama did his part by putting fear into the heart of the native doctor to see that he literally obeyed the doctor's injunctions.

When Dr. Shelton and his assistants started on their homeward trip to Batang they were loaded with many costly presents. It was because of these services which Dr. Shelton rendered him and the wounded Thibetans that the Dali Lama was willing to give the doctor letters of introduction to the Great Buddha at Lhassa and upon these he is banking his hopes for the success of his proposed journey to Lhassa.

Bolsheviks Say Will Refute His Propaganda Charge

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 26.—M. Berzin, of the Russian trade delegation, replying to Lord Curzon's note protesting against the continuance of Bolshevik propaganda in the East says that the Russian Government, while convinced that Lord Curzon's accusations are baseless, is making fresh enquiries in order to refute them in detail. M. Berzin asserts that Lord Curzon and the Foreign Office have been the victims of false reports spread by the Russian White Guards and the French and concludes by declaring that the Russian Government is more than ever anxious to maintain friendly relations with the British Government and has proved its good intentions by ceasing all activity in the East likely to offend the latter since the Anglo-Russian trade agreement was concluded.

STALIN SUPERVISES

London, Sept. 27.—The Soviet propaganda in the Orient is under the supervision of Stalin, the head of the Nationalities Department, who comes immediately after Lenin and Trotsky in the Soviet hierarchy.

Stalin really dominates the Soviet's foreign policy, the basic principle of which is a federation of autonomous national Soviets extending beyond the former Russian Empire into Afghanistan, Persia, Bokhara, Armenia and Anatolia.

CHEFOO HARBOR BREAKWATER IS FORMALLY OPEN

(China Press Correspondence)

Chefoo, Sept. 14.—This was one of the greatest days in the history of Chefoo, for the harbor was officially declared open. This means that the Breakwater was officially declared finished. The Mole is not quite completed, but the ceremony was performed in spite of this fact. His Excellency the Dutch Minister, and Sir Francis Aglen, Inspector General of the Chinese Maritime Customs, were the special guests of the community. The completion of these works which give Chefoo a really safe and first class harbor was made the occasion for great festivities.

At 10 o'clock a tour of inspection was organized by the Netherlands Harbor Works Co. Their three big tugs, dressed for the occasion, were crowded with passengers. The arrival of the Acting Taoyin a quarter of an hour late delayed the commencement of the trip. But as the vessels sailed over to the Breakwater there was a tremendous firing of crackers, which continued at intervals all the morning.

On arrival at the Breakwater, passengers were landed and they walked along the entire length of it. It is a massive piece of work, half a mile long. On reaching the other end everyone went on board the tugs again and to inspect the quaywall, as well as the Mole where the railway track already had been laid. The visitors again boarded the tug boats and launches for the Customs ship Pingching.

The Pingching weighed anchor and sailed round to the northern entrance of the Breakwater and at 12:15 broke the rope joining the Mole to the Breakwater and thus the harbor was declared opened.

The cost of the work has been $4,300,000. The Breakwater was finished some months ago and it is estimated that the Mole will be completed by the end of the present year. The latter is nearly a mile long and the quaywall is 600 feet long forming the northern arm of the Mole.

DENIES POWERS WILL LET OPEN DOOR BE CLOSED

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 26.—Mr. Nagai, Councillor of the Japanese Embassy, in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce Journal challenges the statement by Mr. Lenox Simpson quoted from that newspaper to the effect that the Japanese Premier had declared that the Powers had acquiesced in the abolition of the open door in Manchuria.

Mr. Nagai, as the result of official enquiries, says that the Japanese Premier in the House of Peers recently announced that the Powers who participated in the negotiations for the formation of the Chinese Consortium had recognised certain special interests which Japan enjoys in Manchuria and Mongolia but no mention was made of abolition of the open door.

He asserts that an incorrect construction has been put on the Japanese Premier's statement.

Japan's Prince Is Asked To Make Visit To America

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Sept. 24.—During his audience with the Crown Prince today, Mr. Warren, the American Ambassador, invited His Imperial Highness to visit America. Prince Hirohito replied that he hoped to do so soon.

After Mr. Warren's audience with the Empress, the entire Embassy staff—26 in all—were favored with an audience.

BADEN HAS CLUE TO SECRET CLAN OF MILITARISTS

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Sept. 24.—According to Berlin reports, the Baden Government has found a clue to a secret organisation which is aiming to reinstate the militaristic regime and restore the German army to its former strength. The assassins of Herr Erzberger were members of this organisation.

it was the lady of the House of Sung who drove him to philosophy, for early in his career he remarks, "Of all people, women and servants are the most difficult to manage. If you are familiar with them, they come forward, and if you keep at a distance, they become discontented."

Perhaps somewhere on the Milky Way the souls of Socrates and Confucius will meet, and a great crowd of spirits will gather to hear the discussion. We won't be among them, however. You will find us over in a secluded side of the arch, where Xantippe and the lady of the House of Sung are comparing notes on philosophers as viewed daily from the other side of the breakfast table.

40 YEARS SHE SAYS

"My dear," Xantippe will remark, laying an emphatic finger on the knee of the more demure Lady Sung, "you can't tell me a word about it. Didn't I put up with the same thing for nigh onto forty years?" We expect to learn a lot more philosophy from this discussion than from the other one.

Well, anyway, after having collected nearly three thousand disciples, Confucius turned to the art of government. Tradition states that the sage and a guard of disciples once passed a tomb where a woman was wailing like the newest inmate of the City Pound. On being asked the cause of her grief, she explained that her father-in-law had been eaten by a tiger in the neighborhood, then her husband, and later her son.

"But why did you continue to live here?" the sage asked.

"Because there is no oppressive government," she explained. Whether or not the loss of all one's relatives pays for exemption from income tax is a question that can't be answered by one who doesn't know the family. But in any case, her response led Confucius to remark that a bad government was more to be feared than a malicious tiger and he resolved to hold public office himself.

MADE PEOPLE EAT

During his three years as city magistrate of Chungtoo, he regulated the diet of young and old to be sure that they had appropriate food, set such a good example of honesty that there was only one price in the market-places, and made his people so happy that they invariably sang at their work.

Breaking with his prince because the latter accepted a gift of eighty dancing girls and refused for three days to confer with the sage, Confucius left the city and went to reside in the neighboring state of Wei.

"I've not seen one person who loves Virtue as he does Beauty," said the disgruntled philosopher, in commenting on the Prince's enjoyment of the Ziegfeld Follies of his day.

For the rest of his life, outside of a brief tenure of office as Minister of Crime, Confucius wandered from court to court, seeking always to become official adviser to the ruler, but suffering rebuffs and making compromises with his principles that finally caused him to call himself a failure. An eye-witness of his entry into one city described him as having "the forsaken appearance of a stray dog." In another town he was besieged in a house for five days because of his striking resemblance to a notorious brigand. Legend says that he charmed away the mob by playing the lyre and singing original songs.

WOULD PROVOKE SAINT

He enjoyed a small share of glory in the court of the ruler of Wei, but one day when the duke went riding in a carriage with a beautiful courtesan, he ordered the sage to follow him. The sight of the philosopher trailing behind the lady of light reputation so amused the crowd in the streets that Confucius left the city in a huff, more convinced than before that in contests between Virtue and Beauty, Virtue comes out a bad second best.

Confucius, one gathers from the historians, was not entirely popular with his contemporaries. His conscious self-righteousness; his humility; and his habit of giving sonorous advice must have made him a bit difficult to entertain as a steady boarder. In one instance he was seized by a band of citizens as he was approaching a city, and compelled to promise that he would omit the intended call.

Forced by poverty to accept gifts from unscrupulous princes and to give advice on despised military topics, Confucius went down to his death feeling that he had accomplished nothing. He still claimed that if he could rule the realm for three years, he would make it an earthly paradise of good government, but outside of his experience as magistrate of Chung-too, the great chance never came.

PILGRIMS VISIT GRAVE

"The high mountain must crumble, the strong beam break, and the wise man wither away like a plant," Confucius remarked sadly in his seventieth year. Three years later he died, and was buried simply in Shantung, where his grave is a goal of pilgrimage to this day.

Several centuries after the death of the man who became embittered by the fact that he was not sufficiently famous, Imperial families were burning incense before his tablet, his sayings became the foundation of education, and Buddhists and Mohammedans were slaughtered as heretics because they failed to follow his teachings.

Confucius offers no emotional impetus to follow his teachings; nor does he promise any future rewards or punishments. He merely lays down the code of a gentleman and leaves theology to Lao-tze and the mystics.

CABINET CRISIS IN PEKING NOW GROWING ACUTE

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Sept. 22.—The Cabinet crisis became more acute today when Premier Chin Yun-peng announced this afternoon that it was his firm intention to retire from office. This statement, made in spite of the fact that Generals Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun are willing to give the Chin Cabinet their support under certain conditions favorable to them, are taken here as indicating that the Premier considers the political and financial situation as being beyond immediate solution and that he therefore thinks it wiser to give some one else a chance to conduct the affairs of government for a while.

Tsao Kun, according to a report made to the Government by Minister of Communications Chang Chih-tan, who visited Tsao on Sunday, is prepared to support Premier Chin for the sum of $2,000,000, one half of which is to go to General Wu Pei-fu, for use in his expedition in Hunan and Hupeh, while the other half is to be used by General Tsao for his own troops. The Government is, it is stated, able to raise this sum if necessary or advisable, but it is feared in Peking official circles that Tsao's present demand will be but the first of many and that every future Cabinet crisis will result in further demands for cash in return for the Paotingfu satrap's support.

Chang Tso-lin's exact terms to the Premier are not known. It is known, however, that the Cabinet are agreed that Chang's demands are exorbitant in the extreme and that it is wiser to resign than to retain office as a result of their acceptance. In this connection the Premier is understood to feel that the financial situation of the Peking Government is not such as to warrant any immediate large advances to the Military Governors throughout the country and that funds cannot be advanced to one or two of the militarists without paying over proportionate amounts to all of them.

YEN ALSO TO QUIT

Dr. Yen is, like Premier Chin, said to be firmer in his intention to resign both as Minister for Foreign Affairs and as China's Chief Delegate to the Washington Conference, and the chances of his going to Washington on October 4 are now considered slight in Chinese official circles. Dr. Yen has been discouraged by the sudden turnover in the political situation, as well as by the fact that the original appropriation for the use of China's delegation to Washington has been cut almost in two. Furthermore, none of the money designated for the use of the delegation has as yet been turned over to the Foreign Office, with the result that Dr. Yen and his assistants have been seriously handicapped in their efforts to organise their staff and prepare China's case.

It has been freely hinted today in connection with the Washington Conference that no delegation at all will be sent from this country and that China will depend upon Ministers Wellington Koo, Alfred Sze, and Philip Tyau, Chief Justice Wang Chung-hui and such staff as they can gather together in Washington to submit China's case to the Washington Conference. This report is not credited in many official quarters, but the fact remains that the Chinese delegation is at present without the funds required for making the journey and that its personnel has not only been reduced but also been seriously affected by the present governmental crisis.

Merejkowski Compares Tolstoy And Bolshevism

"With Whom Does Tolstoy Stand—White Or Red Russia?"—"He Is Between The Two Camps Or Above Them"

Dimitri Merejkowski, the noted Russian novelist and critic, with his wife, has arrived in Germany from Russia. Merejkowski's latest book on Bolshevism, "The Kingdom of Antichrist," soon will be published in both Russian and German by the Drei-Masken-Verlag, of Berlin and Leipzig. The following article by Merejkowski deals with the relation between Tolstoy's teachings and Sovietism, and has aroused much interest because it sets forth the extreme attitude of the intellectuals of old Russia toward the new regime.

BY DIMITRI MEREJKOWSKI

(Translation by Orrick Johns of notable article in Paris Revue Hebdomadaire by the famous Russian intellectual)

With whom does Leo Tolstoy stand? Both camps, the white and the red, would be glad to have it thought that his tide is flowing over their mill, and each imagines it is easy to claim him. No, it is not easy.

If we wish to be more honest than our foes, we might declare openly, by whatever scale one weighs him, ethically, estheticaly, politically, philosphically, Tolstoy is not with us. To put the matter more trully, he is between the two camps, or above them.

One may make the general admission that in ethics Tolstoy is not with the Bolsheviks, because with him "resistance to evil" is an absolute negation of violence, while the Bolsheviks are complete devotees of violence. But the denial of violence separates Tolstoy from us as well as from the Bolsheviks; in fact, neither do we disavow force, we oppose force to evil. It is simply a question of degree; the violence of the Bolsheviks is without limit, ours permits itself to be restrained.

QUESTION OF DEGREE DID NOT EXIST TO HIM

"Thou shalt not boil a kid in its mother's milk," says the law of Moses. No one has ever eaten of the anathematised meat with more appetite than the Bolsheviks.

But we also have partaken of the kid, though prepared in another way. Tolstoy ate no "butcher's meat" at all; little difference to him how it was cooked. The question of degree in the use of force did not exist for him. In any case it is not in the name of degrees of morality that we shall take him from the Bolsheviks and attach him to ourselves.

Socially, politically, Tolstoy was a capitalist and "landed proprietor;" all his flesh is the old flesh of Russia. But he also mutilated it, maimed it, immolated it with the same blind fury as the Bolsheviks. Nothing of that flesh has been spared by them, nor by him, either.

All of Russia has been flung as a dry log into the hearth of universal revolution. And would not Tolstoy have flung it, would he have been seized with fright, would he have understood that the body of Russia was that of his mother? In his social and political conceptions we do not find a single word which would permit us to make such an assertion.

But it is in the esthetic and the philosophical sence that Tolstoy comes closest to the Bolsheviks. Leaving aside the official teaching of "proletarian culture," the gabble of the makers of dupes; in its very essence, in that vague popular feeling which has upheld it and carried it thus far, what is Bolshevism?

GENIUS OF TOLSTOY MUCH THE SAME

The denial of all civilisation; a morbid and anti-natural public "complex"; the desire for simplification—that is to say, briefly, the philosophical aspiration toward savagery. But is not the whole genius of Tolstoy made up of the same aspiration?

"You have the marks of our common Tolstoyan savagery; it is not for nothing that Feodor Ivanovitch tattooed himself."

That which in the case of this ancestor (of Tolstoy's) was only an extravagance, became wisdom in the case of the descendant. The "savage" Tolstoyan wisdom denies or at least deprecates all that is conventional, artificial, created by man—in short, all of civilisation—and sanctions all that is simple, primitive, elemental, savage.

RUSSIAN PHILOSOPHY

Blocks of stone tumbled against each other, as in the primordial savage state, that is all very well; but here we see they have been placed one on top of the other, that is already not so good; and finally there we see them interpenetrated by iron or cement, and that is altogether bad. A building is erected—palace, barracks, prison, custom house, hospital, slaughter house, public house, school, what matter?—all construction is an evil, or at least a doubtful good.

The first "savage" Tolstoyan idea at sight of any form of construction, complexity, height, is to abase, simplify, level off, demolish, destroy, so that there remains no stone upon another, and all becomes savage, "simple," flat, smooth, empty. Nature is simplicity, civilisation is complexity. To return to Nature is to simplify the complicated, suppress civilisation.

"Suppress the ancient culture to create a new one," say the Bolsheviks. But all their sayings are only nonsense, deception or ignorance, and their acts are, alas! realities. Let us do them justice—the world has never seen such destroyers.

"The joy of destruction is a creative joy;" the formula of Bakunin, Lenin, Tolstoy, Pougatchef, Razine, eternally Russian. If destruction signifies creation, why fear to destroy? It is only necessary to destroy the old in order for the new to give birth to itself and grow of its own accord. Création is involuntary, but limitless destruction is voluntary.

'NOT A HOUSE, BUT A TENT'

We believed that Russia was a house; no, it is a tent. The nomad erected the tent, then folded it up again and buried himself in the steppe. The naked, level steppe, land of the Sythian nomads. Let a single ridge interrupt the monotony, let a single dark point, however tiny, lift itself, all shall be levelled, put down, reduced to ashes, crushed under the feet of the Sythian horde. The thirst for isolation, nakedness—that old Sythian passion—is identical with that of Araktcheief, Bakunin, Fougatchef, Razine, Lenin, Tolstoy. They have razed, equalised all Russia; they will raze Europe, they will level off the universe.

They have annihilated the Russian civilisation, they will annihilate the universal civilisation. Exactly like Lenin, Tolstoy jeered at the "fruits of civilisation," and these fruits have shrivelled, and with them all the fruits of the earth; the earth gives forth no longer and men die of famine.

Can this Russian longing for savagery become a universal longing? Yes. If Russia has Tolstoy, Europe has Rousseau. Rousseau and Tolstoy appeared at the dawn of two revolutions. Can it be of one—of the universal revolution?

The return of civilisation to savagery is a recoil, a reaction. Every political and social revolution has a philosophical reaction as its point of departure; through that it plunges into savage terror and the primitive.

From Rousseau to Tolstoy the "aspiration" toward "savagery" has spread and enlarged like a volcanic fissure, like a bottomless chasm. And behold Europe, behold the earth on the edge of this abyss.

The elemental is impersonal. Whoever opposes civilisation to the savage, elemental principle, opposes the personal to the impersonal. To aspire toward savagery is to aspire toward impersonality.

That's why Tolstoy abolished Napoleon, to eclipse the sun of personality, as a cloud charged with the diluvial waters eclipses the sun of Heaven.

In place of the radiant sun, there are the innumerable petty and obscure "atomic suns," the "spherical" of Plato Kartaief, the myriad drops of water of this social deluge which has already failed once to engulf the world, and wishes again to swallow it up.

The Napoleonic sun dissipated the first flood cloud; what sun shall scatter the second? Let the deluge equalise the heights and the valleys, such is the desire of Tolstoy and of Lenin.

SUICIDE OF EUROPE

Bolshevism is the suicide of Europe. Tolstoy began it; Lenin consummates it.

Are the Bolsheviks correct, then, in saying that Tolstoy is with them and not with us? Is this the final conclusion? No.

Politics, ethics, esthetics, philosophy, none of these values were for Tolstoy either the last or the most lofty. For him the supreme thing was religion. With whom does Tolstoy stand? This question cannot be resolved except in the light of religion.

It was only because we abandoned religion that he abandoned us; and so long as we do not return to it, he will not return to us.

"Resist not evil with violence." This concept, ethically doubtful, becomes in religion a reality. From a greater violence to a smaller one, such is the progress of morality, while the aim of religion is the absolute denial of violence.

The Bolshevists are going in exactly the opposite direction, pursuing a contrary aim; from the lesser violence to the greater, even to the complete affirmation of violence. That is why they "boil the kid in its mother's milk." It is not another ethic, but another religion. If we understand that, Tolstoy will be with us.

For Tolstoy the old body of Russia was dead politically, but living in the religious sense. "I cannot separate myself from the old woman who believes in Good Friday," he said. "I hold her faith to be real, because I know that she only clings to the absurdity of the conception of Good Friday as far as it means God, and that she looks with all her eyes and cannot see farther.

"She looks where it is proper to look, she seeks God and God will find her. For the rest if I feel myself in full accord with the naive and sincere faith of the plain people, I shall not be less so with the faith according to the Church." If we understand that, we understand also why Tolstoy would not have flung the body of his mother, Russia, like a log into the holocaust of revolution.

Intellectually, the aspiration of Tolstoy for "savagery" is a bottomless pit, the end of all civilisation; but in religion it is at once the end of the ancient civilisation and the creation of a new one.

There is no civilisation without religion, even as there are no deposits of solar heat—the coal mines—without the sun. The return to civilisation of religion is the return of the energy of coal to the solar heat. It is not a denial, but a greater confirmation of civilisation.

When Tolstoy played in his childhood on the height of Yasnaya Polyana, he founded the "order of the salvation of the world," and buried a "green wand," believeing that when some one dug it up the kingdom of God would descend upon earth.

If it is a legend, it expresses the deepest spirit of Tolstoy: childhood regarded as the kingdom of God. "Whoever shall not receive the Kingdom of God as a little child, he shall in no wise enter therein."

THE GOLDEN AGE

The golden age—the childhood of the world—is it in the past? No, but in the future.

When we are converted, we shall become like unto children and believe in the miracle, then we shall uncover the Green Wand and the Kingdom of God shall descend upon earth.

In this we shall no longer see an intellectual reaction, but a religious revolution, the greatest of all the revolutions. And if all the revolutions have been plunged into Terror, it is because they have not had religion behind them.

The politics of Lenin are a steel lever of unceasing destruction; the religion of Tolstoy is the Green Wand, the branch of the Tree of Life, the magic baton of infinite creation. That is why it is not a philosophical falsehood, but a religious sacrilege to couple Tolstoy with Lenin. And once more, if we understand that, Tolstoy is with us.

In philosophy Tolstoy tends openly toward impersonality, but in religion he aspires secretly toward the one Countenance. The Countess Alexandra Andreyevna is a unique witness of his real faith in the Countenance, she, who better than anyone, knew his belief.

He believed, but he could not express it. "One cannot tell one's belief . . . once one has uttered it, it is a sacrilege." It is little to speak, one must speak and act. And now, who shall speak and act? Yet even if he is silent we nevertheless know that he is with Him, of whom we cannot pronounce the name.

He is with Him, but we, who are we with? Only the answer to this question will enable us to know whether Tolstoy is or is not with us.

"St. Leo, pray for us!" The Countess Alexandra Andreyevna predicted that she would one day address this invocation to her nephew.

Is he holy? No, in spite of all his grandeur, he is a sinner like us. Is not that why we love him more than the saints?

When the saints die they go straight to heaven, but sinners pass through Purgatory. Russian Bolshevism is the Purgatory of Tolstoy. It is the fire of his sins that burns at this moment all of Russia, but she shall not be reduced to ashes; the Green Wand shall save her. Only the sins will be consumed in the flames of Purgatory and from these flames shall arise holy Russia, St. Leo.

"St. Leo, pray God for us!" As we do not make this appeal we shall not save Russia.

PREMIER URGED TO RESUME HIS DUTIES AT ONCE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 23.—President Hsu sent Mr. Wu Chi-sun (Chief Secretary of the Presidency) and Mr. Kuo Tsze-yun (Chief Secretary of the Cabinet) yesterday to urge Premier Chin to resume his duties at the Cabinet as quickly as possible. The Premier, however, only agreed to carry on for a short while.

It is announced further that Dr. Yen will in no circumstances resign from the Cabinet independently, but if the Premier retires the Cabinet will go out en bloc.

Arbitration Is Plan Of Macao

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Sept. 26.—The excitement in Macao during the last week-end has subsided. Martial law, which had been declared, has been withdrawn.

The Chinese gunboat has not left the Inner Harbor, but trouble has been evaded.

It is probable that the matter will be settled by arbitration.

SEEK MISSING STUDENT

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 23.—Telegrams have been received by the Government from Mr. Shih Yu-ming and Mr. Tao Lu-chien (Consul-General at New York and Third Secretary of Legation at Mexico City, respectively) saying that they arrived at Havana on the 13th instant, and are now engaged in collecting evidence concerning the disappearance of Mr. Chen, the missing student. They inform the Government that the Charge d'Affaires (Mr. Wu Keh-cho) is giving them every assistance.

China To Pay $800,000 To Send Her Delegation

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 24.—It is announced that a preliminary sum of $800,000 has been allocated for the Chinese Delegation to Washington, which has already received half that sum.

It is still uncertain whether Dr. Yen will undertake the post of Chief Delegate, but in all other respects preparations are proceeding apace.

MORE ARE CHOSEN

Peking, Sept. 24.—The following further appointments as Advisers to the Chinese Delegation are notified: Mr. Ting Wen-chiang, Counsellor of the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce and Mr. Chung Wen-yao, former Director of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. The Delegation now numbers 114.

JAPANESE DELEGATES

Tokio, Sept. 27.—It is formally announced that the Japanese delegates to the Washington Conference will include Prince Tokugawa, President of the House of Peers; Admiral Kato, Minister of the Navy; and Baron Shidehara, Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

PORTUGAL INVITED

(Reuter's Service)

Lisbon, Sept. 26.—The United States Government has informed the Portuguese Cabinet that it will propose Portugal's participation in the Washington Conference on the same condition as Holland, since there are Portuguese interests in the Far East.

ADVISED TO REFRAIN

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 24.—In reply to a telegram from the Government Mr. Chang Tsu-cheng, Minister to Switzerland, says he considers that the Government would be well advised to refrain from entering into direct negotiations with the Japanese Government regarding the Shantung question and have it brought before the Pacific Conference. Otherwise China would forfeit the advantage she gained by not recognising the German Peace Treaty.

WILL REFUSE TAXES

Peking, Sept. 24.—Following representations to the Government by various local bodies in Shantung against the opening of negotiations regarding Shantung, a meeting at Tsinanfu resolved to cease paying taxes if the Government did not act in accordance with the views reported to Peking.

WILL BE REFUSAL

Peking, Sept. 24.—As far as can be ascertained at present the Chinese Government's reply to the Japanese request for the opening of negotiations regarding Shantung affairs, which will be forwarded to the Japanese Legation next week, while asking for more detailed information will amount to a refusal to comply with the request.

NEW RUSSIAN ADVICE

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, September 25.—Russia's status as far as the Washington Conference is concerned has been defined by the American State Department in the following statement given out to the American press and issued here today for publication by the American Legation.

"In the absence of a single recognised Russian Government the protection of legitimate Russian interests must devolve as a moral trusteeship upon the whole Conference. It is regrettable that the Conference, for reasons quite beyond the control of the participating Powers, is to be deprived of the advantage of Russian co-operation in its deliberations, but it is not to be conceived that the Conference will take decisions prejudicial to legitimate Russian interests or which would in any manner violate Russian rights. It is the hope and expectation of this Government that the Conference will establish general principles of international action which will deserve and have the support of the people of Eastern Siberia and of all Russia by reason of their justice and efficiency in the settling of outstanding difficulties."

A statement similar to the above in subject matter and phraseology was received yesterday at the American Legation from the State Department for informal transmission to a representative of the Chita Mission in Peking.

LOOK FOR RECOGNITION

The two statements of the American Department of State, one for the press, the other for the information of the Mission of the Far Eastern Republic, are interpreted here as meaning that no Russian de facto Government will be officially received at the Washington Conference. The question as to whether an unofficial mission from any de facto Russian Government would obtain a hearing at the Conference is not thought to be so clear; but the general opinion here is that nothing will stand in the way of an unofficial visit to Washington by Chita representatives, provided that they can obtain the necessary visas in time to be present while the Conference is in session.

In some circles it is maintained that the State Department's attitude is wisely and safely taken, as the admission of one Russian faction to the Washington Conference would naturally and inevitably arouse the jealousy of other factions to which no initation had been issued. Furthermore it would be impossible to give a hearing at Washington to all the Russian factions that might consider themselves entitled to be there.

ONLY TWO GOVT'S.

On the other hand many persons, including Russians of both the old and new schools of political thought, have stated that there are today but two real governments in Russia, the Moscow Soviet Government and the Government of the Far Eastern Republic. The Merkuloff Government at Vladivostok cannot, they say, be regarded as even a de facto government. The Japanese have themselves indicated this by stating through various of their civil and military officials that Merkuloff's Government would fall the minute the Japanese commenced to withdraw their troops from Vladivostok. Also the fact that Japan is negotiating with Chita at Dairen on questions involving the entire Russian Far East is taken here as indicating that Chita is the only government in Siberia to be considered seriously by Japan.

There remain, therefore, only the Moscow and Chita Governments; and it is generally felt here that the Powers be wiser if they realised that they are facing facts and not theories, if, in other words, they were to give both Moscow and Chita an opportunity to attend the Conference unofficially and permit these unofficial delegates to act as witnesses and experts on all matters appertaining to the Russian Far East.

Both Moscow and Chita are conceded to have made a mistake in asking for, in fact almost demanding, official representation at the Conference. But it is believed that the mistakes of both sides could be rectified and the deliberations of the Conference facilitated if the participating Powers could see their way to giving Chita and Moscow an unofficial hearing. The information that the delegates of these two de facto governments could furnish the Conference would, it is believed in most circles here, be invaluable in clearing up much of the Far Eastern tangle.

TOO OLD, SAYS CHANG

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 25.—In declining to become a Member of the Delegation to Washington Mr. Chang Chien said that Dr. Wellington Koo was thoroughly qualified to deal with all matters relating to industrial affairs and there was, therefore, no need for the services of an old man like himself.

Notwithstanding the financial deadlock regarding funds for the Delegation to Washington preparatory measures are going ahead and the various Advisers being selected. It is reported today that Mr. Hsu Hsin-cheng, Secretary for Foreign Intercourse to the Civil Governor's Yamen in Shantung, has been engaged as an Adviser to the Preparation Commission.

WANT CHINA TO ACT

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Sept. 22.—America's official attitude towards the Shantung questions, as indicated by Chinese telegrams received here from Washington, is that China would be well advised to open direct negotiations with Japan at once and advance these negotiations as far as possible before the opening of the Pacific Conference.

It is undertood here in this connection that Washington is of the opinion that China would be unwise to persist in ignoring Japan's recent Shantung memorandum. The Japanese memorandum, while in many respects unsatisfactory to China, is regarded in America as at least a basis for the commencement of direct negotiations.

China, if she consents to parley with Japan regarding the return of the Leased Territory, will, it is thought in the United States, find herself in a sounder and stronger position when the Shantung question comes up at the Pacific Conference.

While Washington is understood to realise that direct negotiation between China and Japan cannot lead to a definite settlement of the Shantung Problem before the opening of the Conference and that there is likely to be a deadlock on many of the points of the Japanese memorandum, it is none the less America's opinion, according to reports received here by leading Chinese politicians, that China must stand on her own feet in the Shantung matter and not depend too much upon the Great Powers.

MAY HELP CHINA

The Powers may be able to help China and Japan to reach a satisfactory agreement if and when the results of the Sino-Japanese negotiations proposed by Japan are laid before the Washington Conference.

Action by the Powers leading towards a fair compromise of Sino-Japanese differences with regard to Shantung will be facilitated if China consents to the early opening of direct negotiations, according to messages received here from Washington.

There is strong feeling among many Chinese officials that this country would be wise to enter into negotiations with Japan at once, but the difficulty confronting the Government in this connection is the strong popular and vernacular press opposition to any negotiations with Japan as regards Shantung. The people and the press, according to their own officials, are placing too great hopes in the Washington Conference and believe that somehow or other the Powers will this time pull China's fat out of the fire for her. The Chinese popular attitude is further explained by the nation-wide suspision of Japan and Japanese motives and by a general mistrust of China's own officials.

The problem for the Chinese Government is to find a way of handling the situation that meets with present diplomatic requirements and, at the same time, adapts itself to the wishes of the press and people. Two lines of policy have, it is understood in this connection suggested themselves to the Foreign Office.

Of the two policies the first is that China hold the Shantung Question open until the opening of the Washington Conference, as was forecasted by the Chung Mei News Agency early this week, and conduct the negotiations with Japan at Washington, submitting both Japan's original Shantung proposals and the agreement finally reached to the Conference.

GIVE FREE HAND

This plan would, it is stated, have the advantages of giving the Chinese a free hand in their conduct of the negotiations and obtaining the sanction of the Powers at the Conference to the results of the Sino-Japanese parleys. It would, however, be difficult from a purely practical viewpoint to conduct these negotiations simultaneously with all the other Conference business; and this difficulty is likely to cause China to discard the plan.

The second plan under consideration by the Chinese Government is to hand to the Japanese Minister here a series of counter-proposals to the Japanese memorandum of September 7. These counter-proposals, if made, would embody China's basic terms as to the restoration to her by Japan of the Shantung Leased Territory and would carry the statement that nothing contained in them should be construed as meaning that the Chinese Government, by making the counter-proposals, had entered, or consented to enter, into direct negotiations with the Japanese Government.

This plan is favored in many influential circles, as it will define China's attitude towards Japan, as Japan's has already been defined as far as China is concerned. The Japanese and Chinese documents can then, it is stated, be laid before the Washington Conference, where they will serve as a basis for any compromise that the Powers may be able and willing to assist China and Japan in reaching.

A meeting will be held by the Pacific Conference Association, comprising the General Chamber of Commerce and eight other organisations, at 5 p.m. today at the Building of the Chamber of Commerce.

FINANCIAL RUIN FACES BOTH THE TURK AND GREEK

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 27.—Widespread concern has been aroused at the prospect of the continuation of the protracted hostilities in Western Anatolia.

The great Powers are too exhausted to intervene and have left the Greeks and Turks to fight out the question of ownership of Asia Minor, but as a stale-mate has arisen, this policy is now bankrupt.

It is pointed out that the mediation of the Powers is essential if Turkey and Greece are to be saved from financial ruin.

The Greeks destroyed Anatolian villages in their retreat from Angora, thus creating a wide devastated zone between the rival armies.

Reports from Constantinople state that the Kemalists are organising a force under Nihad Pasha with the dual objectives of crushing the insurgent Kurds, and of fomenting insurrection in northern Mesopotamia against Emir Feisul with the object of replacing him by a Senussi chieftain.

Reparations Are Topic Postponed Until October 5

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 26.—Today was the date fixed for the resumption of the conversations between M. Loucheur, French Minister for the Liberated Regions, and Dr. Rathenau, the German Minister of Reconstruction, in regard to the delivery by Germany of reparations in kind.

The conversations have however been postponed until October 5, owing chiefly to the departure of M. Loucheur to the north of France.

HALF OF CHICAGO POLICE VENAL IN LIQUOR TRAFFIC

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Sept. 26.—The Chief of Police of Chicago has ordered wholesale dismissals from the force. He says that 50 percent of the policemen under his command are engaged in the illegal sale and transport of liquor, and declares that there is more drunkenness and more deaths from liquor in Chicago than before prohibition.

These revelations follow the admission that more illicit stills are working in New York than had ever existed in the old days in the mountainous districts of the country and that strict enforcement of prohibition in New York would require a force of a million men, entailing an annual expenditure of £150,000,000.

NAMES HIS STAFF

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 24.—General Chi Chin-chun, the new Tutung of Jehol, arrived at Chinchow on the 20th instant and left again for Chowyang on the 22nd. The Government has received from General Chi a recommendation for the appointment of Mr. You Chung-sheng as Chief of the Administrative Department, and of Mr. Wang Weng-tsao as Chief of the Financial Department of Jehol.

GOVT. CONCEDES MUCH

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 26.—According to advices from Berlin the negotiations between the German Imperial Chancellor and the Bavarian Premier have resulted in a temporary agreement being reached. The Imperial Government is said to have made important concessions.

SZECHUEN ASKS TO SHIP SALT FREE OF TAXES

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 24.—According to foreign telegrams from Szechuen the Szechuenese demand the right to sell their salt in other provinces, without taxation, in addition to the demands already published, as a condition to peace.

MANY STILL MISSING

(Reuter's Service)

Ludwigshafen, Sept. 26.—In addition to the 310 dead reported yesterday there are still 90 missing at Oppau.

Women Bell Ringers Will Organise Band

London, August 16.—Campanologists, or belles of the bells, are seeking to rival men in the ancient and honorable occupation of change ringing.

There was one woman delegate, Miss E. K. Parker, at the all-England conference of bell—ringers held in the Church House, Westminster, recently, one among seventy men. She represented 200 women, who are members of the Ladies' Guild of Change-Ringers. Miss Parker herself is the most skillful women bell—ringer in the world. She has been ringing for twelve years, but declares she has still a great deal to learn of the art.

"We have members of our guild in all parts of the country," said Miss Parker, "and are gaining new recruits every day. Women are taking up ringing seriously, and are finding it most fascinating.

"At present there is no all-women band of bell-ringers, but we are arranging to form one to play this Summer in a London church. There is no reason why women should not make as good ringers as the best of the men."

One venerable man, who had been bell-ringer for "nigh on fifty year," was frankly hostile to the invasion of his craft. "Women," he said scornfully, "may be all right for ringing at a wedding or a chr'stening, but tney never will have the touch for tolling at a burial. They would make too much of a noise, and muddle it for sure."

Business and Official Notices

PUBLIC NOTIFICATION
Chinese Government Railways
PEKING-HANKOW LINE
Short Term Bonds

In 1915, the Peking-Hankow Railway has floated a loan amounting to two million and five hundred thousand dollars ($2,500,000) which has been oversubscribed. Interests have been paid and bonds retired punctually.

With a view to develop the traffic along its line, to strengthen the old bridge, to erect new bridges, to increase the efficiency of its administration, the Peking-Hankow Railway floats, with the approval of the Ministry of Communications a new loan amounting to four million dollars ($4,000,000), bearing an interest higher than the previous loan.

Subscriptions will be taken place either at the Banks designated below, or at the Accounting Department or the Peking-Hankow Railway.

The regulations governing the issuance of the bonds are as follows:

Regulations governing the Issuance of Peking-Hankow Railway Short-Term Bonds.
(Improvement)

Art. 1. With a view to develop the traffic along its line, the Peking-Hankow Railway is authorised by the Ministry of Communications to float a short term loan, to be known as Peking-Hankow Railway Short Term Bonds.

Art. 2. The total amount of the bonds is fixed at four million dollars ($4,000,000) Peking currency.

Art. 3. The denominations of the bonds are of four kinds: namely, $10,000, $1,000, $100, and $50.

Art. 4. Interest for the bonds is 0.8% monthly.

Art. 5. Subscriptions will be taken place within one month and half, that is, from August 16th to September 30th, the tenth year of Chinese Republic.

Art. 6. The term of the bonds is four and half years. Interest for the first six months shall be paid in advance at the time of subscription. $500,000 bonds shall be retired in every six months by drawing, until the total issue shall be retired on March 31, the 15th year of Chinese Republic. The drawing shall be taken place on March 15 and September 15 of every year, supervised by representatives from the Ministry of Communications.

Art. 7. Subscriptions shall be closed at the end of September, the tenth year of Chinese Republic. Subscriptions paid before this date shall receive a monthly interest of 0.8%, to be counted by days, from date of subscription to the end of September which, together with the interest for the first six months (from November 1st, the tenth year of Chinese Republic, to March 31st the eleventh year) shall be deducted from the amount of subscription at the time when payment is made. Interest shall hereafter be paid semi-annually.

Art. 8. The bonds shall be sold at ninety two dollars and eighty cents ($92.80) per every hundred dollars ($100), but shall be retired at the par value.

Art. 9. Those bonds which have been drawn shall receive interests only up to the end of the term in which the drawing has taken place, whatever the date of payment will be.

Art. 10. Beginning from the time when subscription is closed, the Peking-Hankow Railway shall reserve every month $100,000 from its operating revenues to be deposited in the following banks which shall act as its subscription agents, the Bank of China, the Bank of Communications, the Continental Bank, the Kincheng Banking Corporation, the Sing Hua Savings Bank, the Salt Bank, etc., as gurantees for the payment of the bonds and interests.

Art. 11. The above-mentioned banks shall act as the agents of the Peking-Hankow Railway for the sale of the Bonds. But they shall from time to time advice with the Accounting Department of the Peking-Hankow Railway. Interests shall be paid and bonds retired through the same banks.

Art. 12. Detailed regulations governing the sale of the bonds shall be made separately.

Art. 13. The bonds shall not be registered in the name of the purchaser, but it may be so registered, if requested.

Art. 14. The bonds shall be good for guarantee money of the employees of the Chinese Government Railways.

Art. 15. The bonds shall be good for securities or guarantees of the contractors, merchants, and transportation companies who may have contracts with the Peking-Hankow Railway.

Art. 16. The matured bonds and interest coupons shall be good for cash payment to the Peking-Hankow Railway.

Art. 17. In case of loss or destruction by fire of the bonds the original owner or owners shall notify the police office at the place of his residence the number of the bonds and the conditions when they are lost or destroyed, and shall also notify the bank of issue. At the same time, the facts shall be published in at least two daily newspapers. After two months, the bank of issue shall certify the facts and request the Peking-Hankow Railway to issue new bonds to take the place of the lost or destroyed bonds. Matured bonds not redeemed within five years, and interest coupons not redeemed within two years, shall be considered as void.

Note—In case of dispute or disputes arising out of the interpretations of these regulations, the original Chinese version shall be considered as valid.

Siccawei Weather Reports

26.—The typhoon must have wrought much destruction in Japan, but the telegraphic communications have been cut down. Depression south of Vladivostock possibly connected with the typhoon. Violent N.W.ly squalls in Shantung and on the Yellow Sea: variable breezes in the South. Fine day in Central and Northern China and at Formosa; overcast or rainy at the Philippines.

27.—Morning of the 27th. The pressure is still rising over the normal level. Weather fine and cool with some mist. The breeze has been backing to the W.S.W.

Semenov And The China Press

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: Nothing could have been more potent to shake off the soporific atmosphere of a Sunday morning than the astounding headlines with regard to Semenov which appear side by side with his picture in your issue of today.

Whoever was responsible for the copy I cannot guess, but at first I could read no further than the headlines, which, while generally reflecting the best you have to offer in your paper, were in this instance so partial, unjust, and contrary to the proper interpretation of the man as he should be presented to the public, that my interest in the article was entirely damped. However, as it is always interesting to read what you have to say about the arrival of a distinguished or notorious character, it is needless to say that I finally succumbed to the curiosity of going through the three columns of Boswellian partiality and non-Boswellian veracity which compose the article.

Surely, Mr. Editor, you cannot be so wholly ignorant of the facts surrounding the history of this man as not to give us at least an inkling of the other side of the story.

If you had headed your article "A new menace to the peace of the Settlements"—"Another Hsu in our midst"—"What is the Council doing to exercise its rights pertaining to the International Settlements?" or something of the like illuminating character, you might have done more good to the public in Shanghai than your article ever could for the man whose merits you have extolled at the expense of your better judgment as an editor in dealing with notorious characters of the Semenov type.

Of course, as Semenov is reported to be going on a mission to America, this disposes of the matter so far as Shanghai is concerned. But your paper has, I have been made to understand, a very wide circulation and copies of the article in question are likely to cross the Pacific before the Ataman will have a chance to embark. What influence your article will have on the American reading public I do not know, but apart from the small majority of those who are in the know and who, for this reason, detest the man just as surely as you, Mr. Editor, would detest him, had you wished to treat the subject in its proper perspective, the rest are liable to form their opinions just as they gather them from the papers. Yours faithfully,

S. L. M.

Shanghai, September 25, 1921.

P.S.—By the way, I have discussed the article with some Russians who are also in the know, and they say they are very, very much surprised at it. Are you not very much surprised yourself, Mr. Editor?—S. L. M.

We are unable to follow our correspondent's argument. The headlines he so sharply complains of read as follows:

"Ataman Semenov Is Here After Adventurous Career. First Opponent of Bolshevists Now in Shanghai: Dashing Cossack Leader Fails in Hopes: Tries in Vain To Unite His Countrymen Against Siberian Reds."

What, we ask, is the matter with the above captions? There are no misstatements of the facts, so far as we are aware. Why, then, the objections? The same answer may be made in regard to the criticism of the article itself. Our correspondent evidently deeply sympathises with the Bolshevik Cause and whether he is a Russian or not, he is entitled to have this sympathy and to express it. Of course if he is a Russian Bolshevist he will have hatred in his heart for Semenov, which hatred Semenov will as heartily reciprocate.

Where our correspondent probably errs is that he wants to treat Semenov as a murderer, traitor and bandit, just as Semenov in turn wished to treat the Bolsheviki. The truth is that the fight waged in Russia and Siberia between the White Guards and the Red Guards was a full-fledged war for mastery of the country. And civil wars are waged just as fiercely as other wars and under the terrible pressure of actual battle things are done which would not be countenanced or even contemplated under other conditions.

The movement in Russia and Siberia was political. Semenov was not so important a leader as some of the other White Guard commanders, such as Kolchak, Yudenitch, Wrangel and Kappel. He was more of an upstart, rather uncouth and lacking the training, culture and education of the others. His operations, therefore, were more violent and more sanguinary than those which characterised his superiors and he grew to be more hated by nearly all classes than any of the other White Guard leaders. He probably did his cause more harm than good. And the same remark may be applied to Ungern. When the Red Guards captured Semenov's men they did not slaughter them ruthlessly, whereas there were occasions when Semenov (at least these were the reports that were spread far and wide) burned, looted, and slaughtered like a mad man. It became common gossip throughout Siberia that the Red Guards were mild and human when compared to the White Guards under Semenov and this served to hurt the White Guard cause. The help that Semenov got from Japan also hurt his cause.

And yet Semenov was fighting for a cause that he believed in just as his opponents who overcame him were fighting in a cause that they believed in. They outfought him on the field of battle and outmaneuvered him in the field of politics. They won the support of the people and he lost it. He is about the last of the notable White Guard leaders to be driven out. He probably is more hated by the Siberians than any of his associates were because his methods were more violent and sanguinary.

We do not know how history will appraise his effort. Civilisation certainly will not approve his methods any more than the Siberians did. Like Ungern he lacked the restraint which we admire in great men in time of victory. He believed strongly in his cause and was carried away by the violence and vindictiveness of his emotions. And he fell because in the end no faction trusted or admired him. He was engaged in a politico-civil war and failing to win the support of any considerable faction of his people he had to go. That is the inevitable fate of leaders of the Semenov ilk. They are the products of chaos and strife. They spring to power overnight but with the quieting of the storm soon sink back to their true level.

But with these political considerations the reportorial staff has nothing to do. It deals with the news and in chronicling the arrival here of a man who has been a notable figure in Siberian affairs for several years, it does so in the straight news way, telling of his debarkation, who met him, what side he fought on and his eventual defeat. The reporters may or may not think that Semenov was more ruthless than his opponents but it is not for them to state their opinions in the news columns.

ONE WAY TRAFFIC

There is only one road to the town of "Success,"
The name of the road is
"Work."
It has room for only honest
guests,
Traffic's blocked to those that shirk.

The road is open all hours of Today,
It heeds neither time nor date,
And now is the time to start on your way,
For tomorrow will be too late.

Nearly all of the way is an uphill road;
It will seem like a tough old
fight,
But once on your way just bear
up your load
And keep going with all your might.

You will pass through many towns each day,
Such as Failure, Gloom, and Despair;
At each of these stations just keep on your way,
For "Work" does not tarry
there.

After you have entered the town of "Success," Though your load may have been hard to bear,
Once inside you will find both
comfort and rest,
Just be thankful you started for there.

WASN'T A MOTOR CAR

A portly old gentleman with a travelling rug and several bags was endeavoring to make a dignified exit from the crowded railway carriage. At the door, however, he stumbled and brought down his foot somewhat heavily on the pet corn of a brawny Scot.

"Hoots, toots, man," groaned the latter; "canna ye look whaur ye're goin'?"

After he had slammed the door behind him the overburdened traveller put his head through the window.

"Hoot yerself," he retorted. "I'm a traveller not a motor-car."

Taking A Cure

Early Morning Diet Of Dew-Laden Grapes

(London Chronicle)

There are as many ways of taking a cure as there are people who take them. I remember our old family doctor talking about cures in the patronising way old family doctors have.

"Cures," he sniffed, "cures. If people would just get up at 6 in the morning and walk a mile to the village pump on an empty stomach, and pump themselves up a jugful of good cold water, and drink it and walk home again, there would be no need for all these cures."

Now, that was just where our old family doctor was wrong.

It is not the water out of your own dreary old pump that cures, whatever the taste and smell; it's the water out of another village pump; the further away, the more different the taste, and the more unusual the surroundings the better.

The band, the pretty dresses, the price paid for the tumbler of flavoury water, the easy life, the diet, so minutely prescribed, so carefully eaten, the early hours, the gentle walks, the mild amusements, are all part of the cure.

In France this spring we came across a grape-cure village. Nobody there had any idea what was cured by the grapes. All they knew was, that for the whole of September and October there was never an empty bed in the neighborhood. A specialist from Paris arrived, the place filled with Franco-Indian gentlemen and ladies, who came with yellow faces and left with browny-pink ones.

"Grapes make stout people thin and thin people stout," they told us. "But they must be eaten with the dew on them, from six to eight in the morning. We make no wine here, we store no grapes; every grape is eaten, fresh from its vine, dew-laden. It is the dew that helps."

There is a cure I long to try: the mudbath cure.

It appears that the mud absorbs depression. You go into the bath weighted with your own troubles and other people's, with income tax woes and the price of coal grinding at your heartstrings, and you leave your mud singing for joy, and bearing other folk's worries quite cheerfully. So a friend told me solemnly the other day.

Which means, I suppose, that everything depends on the spirit in which the cure is taken.

WANTED: A GOOD, STRONG JAIL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—Now that Norman has been recaptured through the efficient co-operation of the International Settlement police, to whom the greatest credit should be given for the part played in his arrest, it is up to the American authorities to see that Norman is placed where he cannot get out.

Norman had little difficulty in escaping from the United States jail here and even wrote Marshal N. E. Lurton that he had escaped from better prisons.

It seems that the American authorities could request the men in charge of the British jail to look after him or another suggestion would be for the Municipal Police to keep Norman in charge. Now that he has been recaptured, he should be retained. Enclosing my card, I am, Very truly yours,

ESCAPED PRISONER.

AN AUCTION FARCE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—In your issue of the 22nd and 23rd inst. appeared enclosed advertisement, which speaks for itself. I attended the auction with a view of being a possible purchaser of the hydro-glider in its damaged condition. There were present 7 or 8 gentlemen. When the auctioneer started the auction he announced "Buyer to pay wharfage dues and Customs duty and several other charges."

When one of the gentlemen present addressed the auctioneer asking what the several other charges were, and to state definitely the possible amount outside the purchase prize, the auctioneer answered that the Glen Line Agency also had a claim but he did not know the amount. The same gentleman also asked the auctioneer to have the cover taken away so that the machine could be inspected as per advertisement. This request was absolutely refused by the auctioneer. Now, Sir, you will agree with me that no sane person will buy a "Cat in the Bag."

In my opinion the whole affair was nothing but an imposition at the expense of the insurance companies whoever they may be. As the above action of the auctioneer deserves the widest publicity, I shall thank you to publish same in your valuable and esteemed paper. Enclosing my card, I remain, Yours Faithfully,

MILLIER.

LIGHT ON MACAU HARBOR TROUBLE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—Will you kindly insert the following correction to the information published in your paper of this morning, with reference to the events which have taken place in Macau.

Describing the cause of the last friction which brought about the present hubbub, your account says that it was due to the Macau harbor police boarding a vessel containing Chinese soldiers in order to inspect it. According to the Macau paper O Liberal received here yesterday, the trouble originated through a boat-load of Chinese soldiers boarding a junk in Portuguese waters in order to make—what is, after all, so common all over China—the usual exactions. The junk-people called for help and that brought the harbor police boats to the rescue. The Chinese soldiers thereupon jumped into the boat and landed on the Island of Lapa where concealing themselves behind rocks, they opened fire on the police boats and killed the Chinese engineer of a motor boat and one or two others, etc.

As for the right of Chinese gunboats entering the Macau harbor, according to some agreement lately entered into between our own and the Chinese authorities which you quote from the Chinese press, I believe it to be the usual Chinese braggadocio. They are no doubt free to enter the harbor provided that they fulfill all the formalities as imposed by the Portuguese authorities—not when they try to sneak in as if they were in their own home waters. I am not going further into this matter as I am ignorant of the quality and quantity of articles contained in the agreement you mention or even if there exists any such agreement.

If, as the Chinese say, their gunboat had a right to enter the Macau harbor, it does not make sense that when ordered to leave it, before six o'clock, they should have left it so meekly at four. Thanking you for the publication of these lines, Believe me, Dear Sir, Yours faithfully,

C. M. R.

Curious Questions In Science

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I have read in a magazine that the Mississippi River runs up hill because, on account of the bulge of the earth at the equator, the mouth of the river is farther from the center of the earth than the source is. There must be some fallacy here."

There is no fallacy. The equator is about thirteen miles farther from the centre of the earth than are the poles; the distance between the source and the mouth of the Mississippi, measured on a north-and-south line, is twenty-two degrees, or about one-quarter of the angular distance between pole and equator.

From this is evident, without any calculation, that the mouth of the river is thousands of feet farther from the center of terrestrial gravity than is the source, whence it follows that the river must "run up hill," since up always means away from the earth's center.

The centrifugal force of the earths' rotation accounts for this. As Professor Young once picturesquely put it: "If the earth's rotation were to cease the direction of gravity would be so much changed that the Gulf of Mexico would run up the Mississippi River." Another result of this force is that the surface of still water, i. e., the water level, is not at right angles to a line drawn to the center of the earth except at the equator and at the poles. The reason is that at the poles there is no centrifugal force, while at the equator, although the force there reaches its maximum, its direction is radial, i. e., parallel with a line drawn to the earth's center.

"If a steam boilder can stand a pressure of 200 pounds per square inch, would this boiler collapse under atmospheric pressure if a perfect vacuum were produced inside it?

"When a rifle is fired is the report caused by the expansion of gases at the muzzle due to the difference in pressure or by a vacuum produced in the barrel as the bullet passes out?—E. R."

The boiler would certainly withstand the pressure of the atmosphere, and a great deal more, if exhausted of all air within. The atmospheric pressure at sea level is rather less than 15 pounds to the square inch, and the boiler, if safe against a pressure of 200 pounds, from within, should easily bear a similar pressure from without.

The report of a gun is primarily due to the sudden expansion of the air setting up atmospheric waves of lengths corresponding to those that impress the sense of hearing as sound. The formation of a vacuum in a barrel and the rush back of the air into it as the bullet passes out constitute an incident of the phenomenon but the precise part that it plays in the sound of the report is problematical.

After the bullet has left the gun it continues to produce a partial vacuum behind it in the air, but the disturbance is not on a sufficient scale to produce a powerful sound like that of the discharge, but only a high-pitched whistling. Obviously, the quantity of air displaced as the bullet rushes out of the barrel is far greater, than that displaced by the bullet when traveling through the open atmosphere, and this accounts for the heavier sound of the report.

"A says that if a man were to eat two pounds of food and immediately after eating weighed himself he would find that he had gained two pounds in weight. B claims that this is impossible because the food eaten would be dissolved into some form of energy and dissipated, so that if the man were weighed immediately after eating there would be very little gain of weight—he allows three ounces. Which is right?—J. S. P., Newark, N. J."

You ought to take a hint from Lord Bacon and try to find out the truth by experiment, especially where that method of investigation is so obvious and so easy to apply as in this case. If you pour one pound of water into a vessel already weighing three pounds, and immediately afterwards weigh the vessel you will find that it weighs four pounds, i. e., it has gained one pound. But if you put the vessel on the fire and let the water boil awhile and then weigh it you will find that a part or all of the added pound has disappeared. It has gone off in steam.

It is true that there has been a change of energy, and that the water by its expansion into steam has been made capable of doing work that it could not do when in the liquid state, but that implies merely a change in the arrangement and activity of the molecules, and not either a loss or a gain in the total amount of ponderable (weighable) matter concerned.

So the food that goes into the body as fuel goes into an engine, is changed in state, and the energy locked up in its molecules is also changed into different forms, but there is no change of the total amount of either energy or matter. The two pounds of food, after undergoing alteration and chemical separation and furnishing a part of their stored-up energy to the body, disappear and are eliminated in various ways, but if you could collect together all the gaseous liquids and solids into which the food has been altered you would find that their combined weight was still two pounds.

The "two realities" with which science deals are matter and energy. If eventually it can be established that there is only one reality—energy—then there will be more nuts to crack.

The Charter Stone

If Runnymede is sold what will be the fate of the stone table which through the centuries has gone with the possession of the little country house on Charter Island? asks The Daily Chronicle. History, both written and pictured, describes King John and the Barons affixing their signa manual to the Magna Charta on a huge stone boulder.

A section of this rock was cut to form the top of a table, which the writer was shown on Charter Island some years ago. What became of the rest of the stone no one knew; but this part, handed down through generations as the base upon which English liberty was declared, was inalienable from the lease and possession of the island.

TEXACO ROOFING
the Asphaltic Roofing

If interested in a practical roofing you should know more about the Texaco kind—it is a durable, economical, proof against every kind of weather and easy to apply.

Texaco Roofing is a composition of asphalt with an all-rag felt base. Use it on any kind of structure you may possess. There are four weights—a weight suited to every requirement from factory to residence.

Texaco Roofing resists the action of chemical fumes, gas and smoke as well as rain, fog, sleet and any other form of moisture. That's why it is so economical to use. Texaco Roofing is fire resisting and, due to a special tempering process, proof against weather change. It will not melt in hot weather nor will extremely low temperatures cause it to crack.
